NAZIS PREPARE TO HELP ITALY IN BALKAN WAR

Hint Huge Forces May Move Soon.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Huge German military forces again will be set into motion as soon as the Nazis decide to help Italy in the Mediterranean and in Greece and Albania, it was said tonight.

How long it will be before action is taken was a matter of conjecture, but many Germans expressed the belief that "by now Italy has realized that she cannot act alone and will be truly grateful for German help."

May Intimidate Turkey.

These Germans said that if the Nazis reinforce their positions in the southeast they will be in a position to intimidate pro-British Turkey besides helping their axis partner.

[The Stockholm Aftonbladet last night reported in a dispatch from its Berlin correspondent that a strong German military force has been ordered to southeastern Europe.]

Spain has completely vanished from the field of discussion these days. This was taken as an indication that Berlin, for the moment, is displeased with the attitude of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, chief of the Spanish state.

Explains Hungarian Move.

An authorized German source asked what Hungary's adherence to the Rome-Berlin-Tokio axis yesterday means in a military way, said:

"If, for instance, the United States entered the war, then Hungary automatically has to side with Germany, Italy, and Japan. The same would be true of the other countries which within the near future will decide to join the three power pact."

RUMANIAN PREMIER ARRIVES

BERLIN, Nov. 22, Friday (AP).—Rumanian Premier Gen. Ion Antonescu and Foreign Minister Prince Costin Sturza arrived here today for talks with Adolf Hitler expected to lead to Rumania's adherence to the Rome-Berlin-Tokio alliance.

Hungary, which enrolled in the anti-British totalitarian bloc Wednesday at Vienna, already has broadened it to a four power alignment, and Bulgaria and Slovakia, little remnant of Nazi dissolved Czecho-Slovakia, are expected to join after Rumania.

Greeted by Ribbentrop.

Antonescu and Prince Sturza were met at the Anhalter railroad station by Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and escorted to Bellevue castle, Berlin's guest house for state visitors.

President Joseph Tiso, or possibly Premier Bela Tuka, of Slovakia, formerly a part of Czecho-Slovakia, is expected in Berlin shortly.

Observers said that adherence of Hungary, Rumania, and Bulgaria to the axis lineup would pave the way for Nazi troops to march to the Turkish and Greek borders to strike at the eastern Mediterranean bastions of Britain. German troops already are stationed in Rumania.

Dispatches from Bulgaria said that country is expected to alter her attitude of "defensive neutrality" soon by presenting Greece with a demand for a corridor across Thrace to the Ægean sea.

[Bulgaria also demands the part of Macedonia which it lost to Greece in 1913, after the second Balkan war, and Thrace, the territory ceded to Greece in 1919 after the world war.]

Von Papen Confers in Sofia.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 21 (AP).—Sofia went under partial blackout tonight while its political leaders conferred with one of the highest of German diplomats and the Bulgarian public began to ask whether this country had promised to coöperate with the German army against Greece.

In parliament, Deputy Peter Doumanoff denounced England bitterly as "Bulgaria's greatest enemy"; the press spoke of Bulgaria's "trust in Germany's friendship" and Bulgaria's territorial claims against Greece.

The conference between Premier Bogdan Philoff, Foreign Minister Ivan Popoff and Franz von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey, was made possible by the fact that Von Papen ostensibly missed the train which was to take him back to his Turkish post from Berlin.

Italy Cuts Restaurants to Four Course Meals

ROME, Nov. 21.—New food restrictions announced today limit restaurants to serving only four course meals, beginning Dec. 1. Customers must choose between "antipasto or soup, a dish of meat or fish or eggs with vegetables; cheese or sweets when the sale of the latter is allowed." Meat and rice will be rationed at three ounces a person in first class restaurants. Prices, said the communique, will be reduced accordingly.

GREEK TROOPS DRIVE DEEPER INTO ALBANIA

Hem In Two Vital Italian Bases.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 21.—Greek troops slowly are hemming in Koritza and Argyrokastron, Albanian cities from which the Fascist army sprang its attempted invasion on Oct. 28. On the basis of this progress a government spokesman declared tonight that by tomorrow "there will not be a single Italian left on Greek territory."

The Italians already were reported to be retreating from Argyrokastron, which is some 30 miles from the sea at Porto Edda. The fifth city in Albania, with a population of 10,836, Argyrokastron was made a storehouse for vast supplies of war by the Italians. Now the Greeks report they are in a position to capture these supplies, with one column of troops within six miles of the city.

Dominate Road of Retreat.

At Koritza, northeast of Argyrokastron and 10 miles inside Albania, the Greeks said their armies were at the outskirts of the city. Greek airmen who flew over the embattled area said the Italian garrison was evacuating the city, but that it had to do so along roads dominated by shellfire from carefully concealed Greek mountain artillery.

Further illustrating the peril which confronts Premier Mussolini's legions, the Greeks asserted, was Greek control of the road at Ersek, which is Italy's only means of communication between troops in the Koritza sector and those in the Konitza-Argyrokastron area. Ersek is about 22 miles south of Koritza.

Greek motorcycle units pursuing the Italians up the Aoos river valley near Ersek were unable to match the speed of the fleeing Italians, it was asserted.

Number of Breaks in Line.

This assertion also was made in respect to the action before Argyrokastron, where the southern Italian front was said to have collapsed after several breaks in the line.

In some places, the Greeks said, their troops had penetrated into Albania so deeply that British and Greek planes were used to drop sacks of canned meat and bread to them. The troops at first thought the parcels of food were bombs from Italian warplanes.

The Athens press continues to print stories about the feats of Greek troops at the front. One such account told of an action at Viglista, where, it was said, 3,000 Greeks chased 8,000 Italians from the city and captured 20 enemy field guns and countless numbers of machine guns.

Call It Disorderly Retreat.

The Italian retreat at Viglista, the press declared, became disorderly yesterday and Italian tanks, in an effort to stiffen Fascist resistance, were said to have fired into their own ranks.

Greek planes were reported bombing the retreating Italians and attacking Fascist airdromes, particularly at Argyrokastron and Valona, the latter a seaport.

The British said that planes under their command had attacked Tirana, the Albanian capital, and Durazzo, the port which Italy has used to supply her forces in the Greek campaign.

Report Greeks Enter City.

BITOLJ, Jugo-Slavia, Nov. 21 (AP).—Advance units of the Greek army have begun entering Koritza, Italy's strategic base in southern Albania, after a hard day's fighting with the Italian rearguard, according to unofficial reports from the Albanian frontier tonight.

Large detachments of Greeks were said to be following the advance units to complete the occupation of the city. The Italians were retiring in two directions, north of Koritza, and to Pogradetz, the reports said.

From Jugo-Slav soil, observers reported seeing an Italian column 12 miles long, mostly of motorized units, carrying out the retreat to Pogradetz.

Despite strong Italian resistance, the Greek drive was reported ready to continue past Koritza without delay. Artillery fire heard on the border has been unceasing day and night.

Italians Resist Greek Attacks.

ROME, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Italian high command today said Fascist troops still were resisting continual attacks of the Greeks along their entire front, especially in the sector of Koritza.

Italy Captures RAF Chief on Island of Sicily

ROME, Nov. 21.—While en route to take up his new post of deputy commander of the British air force in the middle east, Air Marshal Owen T. Boyd was captured when a twin engined Wellington bomber was forced to land in Sicily, the high command announced today. Four other officers and two men aboard the plane also were taken prisoners.

Air Marshal Boyd.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

Despite press dispatches asserting that Italian planes reconnoitering in the central Mediterranean forced the British bomber toward Sicily, it was understood that Marshal Boyd's capture probably was due to an error in navigation caused by bad weather.

Marshal Boyd, it was believed, must have flown from London to Gibraltar, and after stopping there for refueling, resumed his trip, heading for Malta. He was believed to have decided on taking off from Gibraltar late Tuesday night, timing his departure so he would get to Malta shortly after sunrise yesterday.

Runs into Bad Weather.

The weather was bad on that night, and this, it was said, must have deprived Boyd of celestial navigation. It such was the case, it was explained, he had to depend on dead reckoning and fly by instruments.

The plane then was forced off its course by the wind, it was believed, so that it missed Malta. The bomber presumably kept flying for hours trying to locate the island, but when its supply of gasoline ran low, Boyd apparently decided to make a landing on Sicily, as the only alternative was death in the sea.

This is the most plausible reconstruction of the incident, according to experts. Motor trouble was mentioned as another alternative.

Tries to Destroy Plane.

As soon as he landed, Italian sources said, Marshal Boyd, who is 51 years old, attempted to destroy the plane, but was prevented from doing so by the Italians. The capture created a sensation in high Italian circles. Their satisfaction was all the greater, it was stressed, as Boyd's appointment last Sunday to the middle east post supposedly was to have marked intensification of aerial warfare against Italy.

RATNER IS RE-ELECTED KANSAS GOVERNOR BY MARGIN OF 427 VOTES

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 21 [Special].—Kansas' Republican governor, Payne H. Ratner, apparently was assured of reëlection tonight when a complete unofficial count of ballots showed him to be the winner by 427 votes.

The total vote gave Gov. Ratner 425,925 to 425,498 for his Democratic opponent, William H. Burke, a stockman and banker.

The election outcome, so close that it was undecided for 16 days after the votes were cast, even now is somewhat in doubt, for Burke and his backers have taken court action and threaten to take more. They say they can challenge 1,000 ballots.

They brought a mandamus suit in State Supreme court to compel the canvassers to permit the Burke forces to see affidavits detached from the absentee ballots. The court heard arguments on Tuesday, then asked both sides to submit briefs.

Jerry Driscoll, one of Burke's attorneys, said yesterday the Democrats were considering filing a second mandamus suit asking that the election board be compelled to throw out several hundred ballots which they declare were illegally marked.

BANDIT LEAVES LAUNDRY WITH A WARM HEART

Charley Moy introduced a new service yesterday in his Chinese laundry at 57 East 31st street—ironing a shirt with the owner inside. It's especially for bandits.

Charley's iron was sizzling when five robbers came in with their hands in their pockets as if they had guns and demanded money. He pressed his iron against the leader's chest and began smoothing out the wrinkles. The iron was too hot. It scorched coat, vest, shirt and bandit. The robbers fled without waiting for Charley to finish.

Two other bandits bound Lin Sing and his helper with bed sheets in Lin Sing's laundry at 3538 Indiana avenue and took $25. Lin Sing sang a word of praise for the bandits anyway. They used sheets he hadn't ironed yet.

Five Firemen Hurt Fighting Blaze in Hotel

Four firemen were overcome by smoke and another was injured yesterday, fighting a spectacular fire which drove 40 residents from the Jonquil apartment hotel at 1600 Jonquil terrace. A woman and a man who were partially overcome by smoke were carried down ladders to safety by the firemen. Another man jumped safely from his second story window.

Joseph Mackey, second deputy fire marshal, estimated the damage at $25,000.

The fire broke out at noon in the bottom of a waste paper chute and quickly spread up the chute to the top of the three story building. Dense smoke billowed thru the hotel, in which several persons were still sleeping.

Parked Cars Hamper Firemen.

A 2-11 alarm brought a score of fire companies to the scene, but parked cars lined on both sides of the street hampered the firemen. Motorists who followed the fire trucks added to the congestion, and 25 policemen commanded by Lieut. Maurice Byrne of the Rogers Park station were rushed to direct traffic.

The firemen found a roaring blaze on the third floor. They carried out Miss Jean Ustad, 20 years old, and Richard Leon, 23. Albert Lewis, 51, a tailor living on the second floor, was unaware that the hotel was burning when he saw the fire trucks arrive. Opening his door, he found the corridor filled with smoke. He jumped out the window upon the grass and was unhurt.

Upper Floors Wrecked.

The flames destroyed half of the third floor and heavily damaged the second. Water and smoke damaged stores on the first floor.

The firemen overcome by smoke were Lieut. Walter Carlson, 3734 North Leavitt street, Squad 5, and the following from Engine Company 70: Raymond Pieroth, 41, of 1817 Farwell avenue; Bernard Izban, 35, of 2716 Monticello avenue, and John Campion, 31, of 1516 Hollywood avenue. John Markwart, 53, another member of Company 70 living at 5958 Oconto avenue, was cut on the foot by a fire ax.

Runaway Barrage Balloons Rip Power Lines in Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 21 (AP).—A group of barrage balloons which broke away from their moorings in England with cables dragging disrupted power lines at Goteborg and along the Swedish west coast today, delaying trains briefly and halting street cars at Goteborg.

War Resources Administrator Urged by Taft

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21 (AP).—Senator Robert A. Taft, [R., O.] proposed today that a war resources administration be created, under a single administrator empowered "to cut across red tape and give his undivided attention to the one vast problem of industrial teamwork for defense."

Sen. Robert A. Taft.

Taft announced that he would introduce a bill to create the administration, whose functions would be to "coördinate all industrial and procurement phases of the defense program."

"We now have a national defense advisory commission made up of seven able men without a chairman," Taft's statement said. "This body, however, is purely advisory and it is not perfectly clear whom the members are supposed to advise.

Too Many Bureaus.

"Apparently each member reports to the President directly. So in effect we have seven new bureaus to coördinate existing bureaus and only the President has the power to coordinate the coördinators."

Taft said his bill follows the industrial mobilization plan of 1939, which he added had never been put into effect by the administration.

"This plan," he said, "has been developed over a period of years by the country's best military and industrial experts. The work of planning our industrial defense began under the national defense act of 1920. It is based on field surveys of thousands of manufacturing plants and on consultation with the executives of every strategic industry.

Plan Copied By Germans.

"The American plan has been copied in many respects by the German government in building its war machine. It is thoroly up to date. It was revised last year and approved by the army and navy.

"Patriotic groups such as the American Legion, with the interests of national defense at heart, are fully in accord with the principles which the experts have set as best calculated to gear the full power of America's production and distribution system into our defense effort."

Sloan Urges One-Man Board.

Boston, Nov. 21 (AP).—Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., chairman of General Motors corporation, said today he believed the national defense program should be under the direction of one man, supported by a technical advisory board and research and production experts.

"Such a board does not exist now at Washington, but it is imperatively needed," he said, "altho excellent progress has been and is being made."

Sloan, speaking at a chamber of commerce luncheon, said he believed production of airplane fuselages would be the most difficult job faced by industry, and suggested that construction of various parts should be spread among many plants with the parts forwarded later to assembly plants.

Report 2 Jap Warships Sunk by Chinese Mines

HONGKONG, Nov. 22, Friday (AP).—The Chinese Central News agency said today that two Japanese warships sank with many casualties after striking Chinese mines in the Yangtze river near Tungliu, South Anhwei province.

GERMANS SHUT PARIS UNIVERSITIES, DUE TO ARMISTICE DAY RALLY

PARIS, Nov. 15 [Via Berlin] [Delayed].—All universities in Paris have been closed by order of the commander in chief of the German forces in France. The order was said to have been instigated by student demonstrations organized on Armistice day despite a ban on such activities.

Reports French Now Back British.

New York, Nov. 21.—The French are now avidly pro-British and are sabotaging production in German-occupied France, according to Henry Daymont, 19 years old, son of Lawrence Daymont, United States vice consul in Paris.

Daymont, who arrived here today on the American Export liner Excalibur, said the French now are cutting telephone lines, blocking railways, and reducing production in factories which make goods for Germany.

DUBINSKY, FAY OF A. F. L. CLASH OVER RACKETS

Others Trade Blows in Hotel Lobby.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Pictures on page 5.)

New Orleans, La., Nov. 21.—Two high ranking labor leaders attending the American Federation of Labor convention engaged in a fist fight in the lobby of the Roosevelt hotel here today.

One was David Dubinsky, head of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, who is pushing a demand for real action by the federation against labor racketeers.

The other was Joseph Fay, vice president of the International Union of Operating Engineers and regarded as that organization's most powerful figure in New York and New Jersey. Fay was said to have been dining with George Browne of Chicago, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employés, before the fight started.

Two Others Join Fight.

The first blows landed on Dubinsky, who is 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 162 pounds. He fought back. The struggle took on a more general aspect when Fred F. Umphey, executive secretary of the Ladies' Garment Workers, went to the assistance of his chief and was met by a rush from an unidentified aid of Fay. These two rolled on the floor until others could intervene and separate all the combatants.

An antiracketeer resolution he had presented to the A. F. of L. convention was the cause of the trouble, Dubinsky asserted.

"I am more determined than ever to put over the resolution," he declared. When he was asked if he intended to take his fight to the floor of the convention he replied: "Definitely."

Guard Placed at Door.

High officials of the federation were reluctant to comment on the fist fight or on the fact that Dubinsky, after it was over, requested and was assigned a policeman to guard his door.

President William Green said it was "just a personal matter," and that he didn't know anything about it. Dubinsky's retort was that, "if Bill says it was personal he must know what he is talking about."

"But," he added with a grin, "I didn't know Fay. I had never seen him and didn't want to see him."

[Fay's career has been marked by frequent disputes with other union leaders, but he has come thru each fight with increased power. Reports of a dispute with Norman Redwood, leader of a tunnel and subway workers' union, caused Fay to be questioned three times in connection with Redwood's unsolved murder, which occurred in New York in 1937.]

Fay Calls It a Brawl.

Fay tonight admitted having a "brawl" and said it was brought about in a quarrel over Dubinsky's departure from the A. F. of L. five years ago and the phrase "moral turpitude" in the antiracketeering resolution.

"We didn't have any trouble," Fay said. "O, we might have had a scuffle or a brawl, but I didn't get hit. There was a little pushing.

"He started the argument. The principal argument was about his quitting the A. F. of L. to help set up the C. I. O. He brought up the subject of the racketeering resolution by asking me what I thought of it.

"I told him I thought it was all right. I told him I thought racketeers ought not to be left in the union, but I told him that there's one word, 'moral turpitude,' that I don't like.

"'Listen Dave,' I said, 'that could mean that if you and I were arrested playing cards we could be thrown out of the union. But the real argument was about the C. I. O.'"

Woll Takes No Notice.

Matthew Woll, chairman of the resolutions committee handling the drive for effective action against gangsters and unfaithful union officials, said no notice of the affair could be taken by his group, which is interested only in policy making matters.

Other prominent unionists said the incident was "unfortunate" but that it would make it more difficult for the federation to pass over the demand for action and content itself

KING HAILS U. S. AID AND PLEDGES BRITISH VICTORY

Churchill, Halifax Also Express Confidence.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 21.—In a ceremony shorn of its traditional pageantry and color, parliament today was reopened by King George VI, who delivered a speech from the throne of the house of lords in which he expressed confidence that "victory is assured," but pledged the empire will fight "until freedom is secure." He expressed satisfaction that aid from the United States is arriving in "ever increasing volume."

Optimism also was voiced by Prime Minister Winston Churchill in a speech in the house of commons and by Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax in the house of lords.

The king and Queen Elizabeth rode to parliament from Buckingham palace in an automobile instead of in the customary golden coach, and the entire ceremony lasted no more than 10 minutes. Missing along the streets were the usual cheering crowds.

In the house the usual pomp and full dress ceremonial were dispensed with. The king wore the uniform of an admiral and did not don his crown as he spoke. Peers were in morning dress or uniform, without their scarlet and ermine robes.

Hails Relations With U. S.

The king and queen entered parliament hand in hand. The king held her lavender gloved hand as he led her to the throne.

The queen wore a gown and coat of deep violet velvet with a hat of the same color and heavy fur trimmings in place of the usual state robes, ribbons, and heavy jewelry.

The king read his speech in a firm, clear voice. It lasted only four minutes. As the king spoke the queen smiled up at him.

In his reference to the increased supplies from the United States, the king said relations "could not be more cordial" between Britain and America.

The king paid tribute not only to "the prowess of the armed forces of my empire and those of my allies, but also by the devotion of the civil defense forces and the tenacity and industry of my peoples."

He added praise for the "staunchness of the men of the merchant and fishing fleets" who, he said, had added "luster to the ancient traditions of the sea."

Churchill Expresses Confidence.

The king said measures would be submitted in commons for "compensating those whose home or business property has, at any time since the outbreak of hostilities, been destroyed or damaged by enemy attack, and for extending insurance against the risks of such damage to all forms of movable property which are not at present protected."

Altho Churchill in his speech admitted the enemy has "greatly superior forces" in the Egypt and Suez canal war zone, he said he was fairly confident the British would be able "to give a good account of themselves when the invading forces fall upon us."

He refused to detail the assistance Britain was giving Greece.

"I can only say we shall do our best," he said. "I feel deeds, not words, are what are expected from us, and certainly hope we shall be able to give from our resources, always heavily strained, a helpful measure of assistance to the Greeks and be able to discharge our responsibilities to Egypt in defending her soil and guarding the vital artery of the Suez canal."

Proposals to Russia Told.

Churchill said the "valiant and sudden uprising" of the Greeks had "almost purged" their country of an Italian invader bent on "pure and unmitigated brigandage."

He declared one of his government's war aims was to keep parliamentary functions "vital and active" even while "under enemy fire."

Lord Halifax said Britain had made "certain proposals" for a trade agreement with Russia which she had "some reason to believe" would be acceptable, and had made other proposals of a "general character," particularly with reference to a "compromise settlement" on the Baltic states to "establish greater confidence" in political relations between the two countries.

Bulgaria Demands Territory

Bulgaria is expected to join the axis lineup in Europe and demand a corridor across Thrace to the Aegean sea. The area covered by diagonal lines was lost to Greece in 1919. The Bulgarians are now demanding its return.

Greek Claims

Unofficial reports last night said Greek forces had entered Koritza (1) as Italian troops in a 12 mile long column retreated along Pogradetz road (broken arrow). Farther south the Greeks were reported advancing on Argyrokastron (2).

SPANISH SHOUT: 'NO U. S. BASES IN SOUTH AMERICA'

MADRID, Nov. 21 (AP).—Carrying placards reading "No bases for North America" and "South America for South Americans," hundreds of students demonstrated in central Madrid today, halting to cheer in front of the Uruguayan embassy and finally disbanding at the American embassy.

Qualified observers said the demonstrators were expressing happiness over Uruguay's attitude on the question of air bases for the United States. Spanish sources said the Madrid government had received assurances from Uruguay that she would not cede bases to the United States.

[The Uruguayan cabinet has approved negotiations for American aid in developing bases which would be available for the use of any American nation but which would remain under Uruguay's sovereignty.]

Flames Menace School; Vandals' Torches Blamed

Students of the Kosminski elementary school, 54th street and Ingleside avenue, will be interested to know that they almost had no school to go back to Monday. Fire, apparently started accidentally by vandals, was prevented from spreading last night only thru fast work by firemen. Capt. Ray Crane of the Hyde Park police, said charred bits of paper and rifled desks indicated that would-be robbers, who apparently got nothing, had used twisted paper as torches to see their way around. Damage to the kindergarten was about $200.

FRENCH WARSHIP SURRENDERS TO BRITISH, REPORT

ALGECIRAS, Spain, Nov. 21 (AP).—A French battleship of the same type as the Paris was reported tonight to have entered Gibraltar and surrendered to the British authorities. The battleship was anchored at the entrance of the port.

MAY BE THE STRASBOURG.

France at the outbreak of war had two battleships of the Paris class, each of 22,189 tons—the Paris itself and the Courbet.

All previous accounts had agreed that the only French battleship known to be left at large after the British had turned upon the French fleet at Oran last July to prevent its falling into German hands was the 26,500 ton Strasbourg. The Strasbourg fled the July 4 battle of Oran and escaped to Toulon.

The Paris, the Courbet, and the 22,189 ton Lorraine were reported by the British some time ago to have fallen into their hands after the French-German armistice. All this raised the possibility of a confusion of identity at Algeciras and made it appear that the vessel reported surrendered might have been in fact the Strasbourg.

15 BRITISH PLANES FIGHT 60 ITALIAN SHIPS; DOWN TEN

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP).—The British tonight claimed two victories over the Italians in their war in Africa. The first, it was reported, came in the air over eastern Libya when 15 British fighting planes clashed with 60 Italian machines and shot down 10 of the Italians, seven of them semiobsolete Fiat biplanes. The British said today they did not lose a plane in this engagement.

From Cairo, Egypt, the British told of one of the largest ground patrol actions recently in the western desert in which they destroyed five and damaged six Italian tanks, captured guns and trucks, took 11 prisoners, and killed 108 soldiers.

CANADA DRAFTS PLANS FOR WAR LOAN IN SUMMER

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 21 [Special].—Finance Minister J. L. Ilsley today announced the next war loan would be floated next summer. He said war expenditures had reached the rate of $1,000,000,000 a year and were increasing. This amounts to one-fifth of Canada's national income.

Ilsley forecast higher taxes and larger borrowings. The total of public borrowing last year was $524,000,000. In addition to the next war loan, Ilsley said he plans to raise $10,000,000 a month for war savings certificates now netting the treasury $2,500,000 a month.

BRITISH VESSEL IS 'SINKING FAST' WEST OF IRELAND

S O S Flash Reports Ship Torpedo Victim.

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—Mackay Radio said today the 4,791 ton British freighter Cree flashed an S O S at 4:28 p. m. [Chicago time] and reported she had been "torpedoed and was sinking fast" about 500 miles west of the Irish coast. No further information was given, Mackay said.

Italian Sailors Washed Ashore.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Nov. 21 (AP).—Reports from Dubrovnik [Ragusa], on Jugo-Slavia's Adriatic coast, said today that the bodies of three Italian seamen wearing lifebelts marked "Vulcania" had been washed ashore near there. There have been no reports, however, of any mishap to the big Italian liner.

Australian Ship Sunk.

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP).—Reuters, British news agency, reported from Melbourne, Australia, today that 23 members of the crew of an Australian minesweeper were lost yesterday when the vessel collided with a merchant ship inside the entrance to Port Philip bay. Australian Navy Minister William M. Hughes identified the sunken craft as the 223 ton Goorangai.

Orinoco Still in Port.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 21 (AP).—Tampico port authorities declared the German motorship Orinoco remained at anchor tonight and expressed bewilderment over an S O S sent out in the name of the refugee vessel and picked up by wireless agencies in the United States.

Observers said the S O S apparently was a hoax. The port captain said "the Orinoco has not left" and added that it was unable to send such a message while at anchor.

[Mackay Radio in New York reported picking up an S O S sent out by the Orinoco, but said the ship's position was not given. It also said the Orinoco had called the German radio station at Norddeich.]

One Ship Scuttled.

A 9,660 ton passenger liner, the Orinoco was one of four German ships which left Tampico before dawn on Nov. 16. Sighting flares, which it was reported later might have been sent up by United States destroyers on neutrality patrol, she and two other ships, the 6,031 ton Rhein and the 5,033 ton Idarwald, turned back to port.

A fourth ship, the Phrygia, of 4,137 tons, was scuttled.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

GALE WHIPS NAZI BOMBERS BOUND ON BRITISH RAIDS

England Has One of Its Quietest Nights.

LONDON, Nov. 22, Friday (AP).—Axis air blows at Britain faded away during the night after a thunderous beginning with attacks on the Midlands factory area and a west British port.

Bad weather—a gale over the English channel—seemingly held the invading airmen in check and daylight ended one of the quietest nights all Britain had experienced this month.

There were two alerts sounded in London during the night but when the second "all clear" sounded shortly after dawn today the only activity Londoners had heard was the bark of their guns.

The few invading airmen who did cross the English channel troubled the northwest, southwest, eastern, and Midland areas, but very few incidents were reported. British reports said most of the bombs fell in rural areas and caused neither casualties or damage.

Spurt in Morning.

A joint communique of the air and home security ministries this morning said "very few casualties have been reported."

The government's reports told of a slight spurt "in the small hours" but "little damage" resulted.

Liverpool had two short raids, the second following closely on one over a northwest town. An East Anglia town also was bombed.

Yesterday in daylight there were three thrusts at London, two of them brief. The dead here were at least four—all members of one family killed by a single high explosive bomb.

The raiders defied a gale over the channel to make their daylight stabs at Britain, and even as they crossed a heavy cross-channel gun duel raged below them.

Bomb U-Boat Bases.

The German bases at Lorient, Cherbourg, Dunkirk, France, and Ostend, Belgium were pounded again last night by British bombers intent on strangling the Nazi submarine menace.

The Ruhr, industrial heart of Germany, also was the objective of a "serious" British raid which the air ministry news service said "must inevitably have disorganized essential traffic and destroyed indispensable raw materials" at Duisburg-Ruhrort on the Rhine, the largest river port in the world.

The news service said "for many hours, both from high and low levels," British bombers attacked this important center and "showered their high explosives and incendiary bombs on the quays, docks, and warehouses." Pilots reported they left six huge fires besides smaller ones in their wake.

Aim at "Administrative Center."

BERLIN, Nov. 21 (AP).—Informed German sources announced that the luftwaffe [air force] had selected London, and especially its "administrative center," as the target area for German bombers tonight.

[London's "administrative center" presumably would be Whitehall, where government offices are closely bunched, Downing street, where the prime minister's residence is situated, and the houses of parliament.]

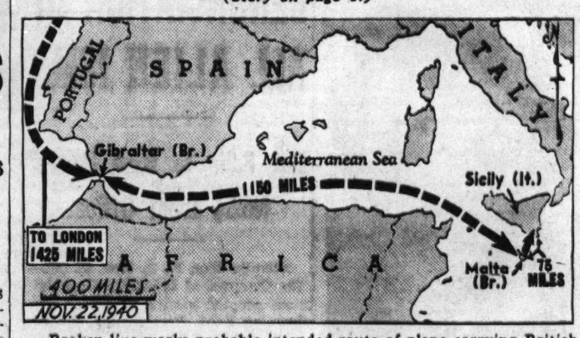
Pilots flying over Birmingham today on reconnaissance reported three big fires and eight smaller ones still blazing in that workshop of Britain.

British Fighter Rams Nazi Bomber in Battle; 6 Killed

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP).—In a swift-running machine gun fight a British Spitfire fighter plane overhauled and rammed a German Heinkel bomber today, causing both planes to crash, killing the four men in the bomber and the Spitfire's pilot. A fireman also was killed by a bomb exploded by fire in the bomber's wreckage.

Route of Flight Ending in Sicily

(Story on page 1.)



Broken line marks probable intended route of plane carrying British Air Marshal Owen Boyd from London to Malta to assume new duties. Boyd stopped at Gibraltar and then continued toward Malta. Bad weather caused the plane to land him in Sicily and he was captured by Italians.

SHIPWRECK TALE TOLD BY MODERN ROBINSON CRUSOE

Lived on Berries, Birds, Sailor Reveals.

BY HARWOOD HULL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Nov. 21.—A strange tale of three men and a jug of rum in a rickety 18 foot catboat was told today by an American seaman following his rescue from a barren Caribbean island where he had been shipwrecked and had lived 10 days or more on berries and birds.

The modern Robinson Crusoe was William Patrick O'Brien, 28 years old, of St. Louis, Mo., sole survivor of the ill fated party. He told his story aboard the coast guard cutter Unalga, which rescued him from rocky Desecheo Island off the west coast of Puerto Rico and brought him here last night.

O'Brien said he and Clifford Russell, another seaman of Louisville, Ky., vainly had sought work in the Puerto Rican region and then decided to go to St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. They were joined by a Puerto Rican who said his brother had a sailboat he could rent for $5, O'Brien related.

Awakens in Storm.

"Russell and I had been drinking," O'Brien said. "We kept on drinking and the Puerto Rican hired the boat and we started out. The only provisions we took aboard was a jug of rum.

"I went to sleep with my suitcase for a pillow. . . . I was awakened in a storm, and the boat crashed on the rocks. I got ashore with my suitcase. It was dark, but I found Russell already there. The Puerto Rican and the boat were gone.

"When daylight came we commenced a search for water. Desecheo is nothing but a rock. Many cuplike holes near sea level had water, but it was salty. Higher up the best we could find was a few drops.

"For a week we roamed the island, eating berries and small birds.

"Last Friday, I think it was, Russell and I swam across a small indentation in the island, seeking water in the rocks beyond. On the way back I heard Russell call for help. I thought he was kidding. I looked back and saw a huge wave dash him against the rocks. Another wave shot him high in the air. Then I didn't see him any more.

Quizzed by Federal Agents.

"Army planes flew over the island almost every day. We had worked out the letters SOS with rocks and fastened a shirt to a stick. Finally a plane saw the signal and the pilot dropped his emergency rations. This was the first real food I had had. It was a box of crackers, a box of chocolate, and a thermos bottle of water."

The next day the Unalga arrived to rescue O'Brien, who gave Russell credit for his being alive.

"He was a swell guy," O'Brien said. "If he hadn't cheered me up for days I wouldn't have had the heart to hope for a rescue."

Tonight O'Brien was released after having been questioned by agents of the federal bureau of investigation about Russell's death. An agent said the inquiry would continue.

TROUBLE FLARES UP ANEW IN INDIA; TWO ROAD GUARDS SLAIN

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 21 (AP).—A new outbreak of "trouble" in India's northwest frontier province was indicated today by a report that two British soldiers had been killed and an officer and two soldiers wounded when tribesmen attacked guards on the Razmak road near Razani on an undisclosed date.

Britain has tried for generations to subdue the tribesmen, 500,000 of whom are said to be armed with rifles and ready to use them.

Seize Former Officials.

BOMBAY, India, Nov. 21 (AP).—Former Prime Minister Bal Gangadhar Kher of Bombay province was arrested today under defense of India rules.

Pandit Ravishankar Shukla, former premier of the central provinces, also was arrested today.

NAZIS CLAIM BIG TOLL OF SHIPPING FOR SPEEDBOATS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Special tribute was paid to the crews of Germany's torpedo carrying speedboats [E-boats] in today's war communique, which said "now for the first time, one German speedboat has been lost in a fight with several English destroyers during an operation against the English east coast."

[The British reported that such a torpedo craft was sunk Tuesday night by light naval forces in the North sea.]

The Germans reported that since the war began, German speedboat flotillas have sunk British merchant shipping aggregating 212,000 tons and warships totaling 11,300 tons, including six destroyers and two submarines. The communique added that the E-boats had had "numerous fights with superior British forces."

Official Says Canada Holds 8,000 to 10,000 Prisoners

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 21 (AP).—Canada's official silence on the number of empire war prisoners behind barbed wire in the dominion was broken today when an official declared there were "many thousands—between 8,000 and 12,000." Most are soldiers, sailors, and airmen captured in the fighting overseas and civilians arrested in the United Kingdom. Canada's peak internment figure in the last war was 8,000.

EXILED POLISH REGIME NAMES NEW U. S. ENVOY

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP).—A Polish embassy spokesman said today it was "officially confirmed" that Jan Ciechanowski has been appointed ambassador to the United States for the Polish government in exile.

Jan Ciechanowski. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Polish minister in Washington from 1925 until 1928, Ciechanowski succeeds Count Jerzy Potocki, who was the Polish envoy before the German-Russian partition of his country and remained at his post until he resigned this month. Ciechanowski, it was said, plans to leave for Washington, D. C., in "about 10 days."

U.S. Ship Line Clashes with Portugal on Mail Fees

New York, Nov. 21 [Special].—Arrival of the American Export liner Excalibur here today disclosed difficulties between the ship company and Portuguese officials over payments for carrying mail. Ship officers refused to comment, but it was learned the Excalibur sailed from Lisbon with only 164 bags of mail, all originating in Portugal. An unknown quantity of mail from 15 European nations was left behind.

PRIZE BOMBSIGHT NOT FOR BRITISH, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Admits They Get Sperry's Invention, Not Norden's.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Amid family Thanksgiving festivities here tonight, President Roosevelt denied that this country's newest and most secret bombsight would be attached to the 46 four-motor long range bombing planes soon to be transferred to Great Britain. The denial was issued thru William D. Hassett, White House secretary.

"The bombers being made available to Britain are equipped with the Sperry bomb sight, which, in relation to the more efficient Norden sight, is considered more or less obsolete," said Hassett. "The Norden sight, of course, remains an American military secret."

Announced by Marshall.

Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, had disclosed in Washington yesterday that Britain was to receive 46 of the bombing leviathans, and the presidential announcement came today to clear up confusion. Three hundred of the nation's first-line fighting planes carry the secret Norden sight.

This brief announcement was the only flurry over the European war emanating from the home of the President's mother here where the family party took place.

President Carves Turkey.

With Mr. Roosevelt personally wielding a gleaming carving knife over a huge turkey, there were present at the family board: Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, his 86 year old mother; his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt; his son, Franklin Jr., and his wife, the former Ethel du Pont, and Mrs. Betsy Cushing Roosevelt, divorced wife of the eldest son, James.

Two grandchildren enlivened the feast. One was 9 year old Sara, daughter of James Roosevelt, and the other the infant Franklin III.

3 NAVY VESSELS ARRIVE ON WAY TO COAST DUTY

Submarine chaser 432 and yacht power boats YP28 and YP31, arrived yesterday from Green Bay, Wis. They are to leave soon via the Illinois waterway for New Orleans, where they will report for duty to the commander of the 8th naval district. Navy officials said they expected no sailing orders before Monday.

The vessels underwent minor repairs at Sturgeon Bay, Wis., before proceeding to Chicago, where they tied up at the naval reserve armory. They were damaged in the gale that swept Lake Michigan on Armistice day. Submarine chaser 330 of St. Louis, which has been waiting at the armory, will accompany them on the journey to New Orleans.

Plans Marriage

RITA JOHNSON.

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—Motion Picture Actress Rita Johnson, 27, is going to wed F. Stanley Kahn, 42, a stock broker. They obtained a marriage license yesterday, and said they would be married next month. Kahn's first marriage ended in divorce.

INVALID FLOWN OVER JAP ARMY ARRIVES IN CITY

Young Teacher Plans to Go Back.

A smiling young man, Charles P. Rockwood Jr., rode into Chicago last night at the end of a 9,500 mile journey which began in the Chinese city of Yuanling, Hunan province, where he was stricken last June with infantile paralysis.

He was taken off the North Western railroad's Viking on a reclining chair and moved to Passavant hospital in an ambulance. He will remain there until he can be taken to his parents' home at 814 South street, Geneva.

Flies Over Japanese Shells.

To reach home he was carried from the interior of China by litter and river launch to Chansha where he was treated by an American doctor. Later he went to Hong Kong by airplane, flying high over Japanese artillery fire. There a Canadian Pacific liner picked him up and took him to Vancouver, where he entrained for Chicago.

Apparently little fatigued by the long journey, and looking little like an invalid, he greeted reporters with a hearty handshake after he had seen his father, a consulting psychologist with offices at 160 North La Salle street.

"There has been a lot of unnecessary fussing about me," he said, laughing. "You can see that I can sit up and that I am not in a cast. The trip out of China was really not so very exciting. We flew over Japanese shells, it is true, but I don't think they were aimed at us."

Plans to Return to China.

He surprised his listeners by saying that as soon as he had completely recovered he intended to return to China and resume his duties as a teacher of English in a school sponsored by Yale-in-China college.

Rockwood, who is 23 years old, was graduated from Yale university in June, 1939, and went to China a short time later.

C. I. O. APPROVES DENUNCIATION OF ALL ALIEN ISMS

But Fails to Bar Reds, Nazis from Office.

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 21 (AP).—The Congress of Industrial Organizations adopted today a resolution condemning "the dictatorships and totalitarianism of Nazism, communism, and Fascism as inimical to the welfare of labor and destructive of our form of government."

The resolution, however, did not contain any reference to the proposal of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers to bar communists, Nazis, and Fascists from C. I. O. offices.

Thomas Kennedy, as chairman of the resolutions committee, moved for its adoption as "a plain, simple reaffirmation of the policies of the C. I. O. and John L. Lewis."

"It is not conceived in Red baiting, hysteria, or witch hunting," he said.

Vote Held Unanimous.

An overwhelming majority stood up for passage of the resolution after the convention first had voted against throwing the issue open to debate.

Vice President Philip Murray, presiding, announced adoption "by what the chair believes to be the unanimous vote of this convention."

The condemnation quickened delegate speculation that Murray might agree to become the candidate for the C. I. O. presidency from which Lewis is retiring. Murray is reported to have wanted a declaration on the communism issue.

Led by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and its president, Sidney Hillman, national defense commissioner for labor, a group has been agitating since the convention opened Monday for a showdown on the issue of foreign isms. This group however, also sought to put into the C. I. O. constitution an amendment barring subscribers to the repudiated doctrines from holding paid C. I. O. offices.

Since the C. I. O. was established here five years ago it has been charged that communists were active in organizing work.

Communist Rule Denied.

The Kennedy report asserted the C. I. O. was "an American institution dedicated to the attainment of its well defined economic and social objectives."

It recalled that John L. Lewis, president, had labeled as a lie any charge that the C. I. O.'s policies were inspired or directed by communist, Nazi or Fascist philosophy.

"We neither accept nor desire," the report stated, "and we firmly reject any policies emanating from totalitarian dictatorships and foreign ideologies such as Nazism, communism and Fascism. They have no place in this great modern labor movement."

The report declared C. I. O. objectives must be the organizing of the unorganized and the making of "a greater and better America."

Demands Roosevelt Act.

Following adoption of the resolution, Lewis demanded that President Roosevelt order the denial of national defense contracts to firms involved in labor law violation cases.

"I call upon this champion of human rights in the White House," said Lewis, "to stand by his oath to uphold the laws of the government of the United States and give to labor the relief for which it prays."

The retiring leader said the issue was whether "the laws can be enforced on rich and poor alike, or just the poor."

He declared that Roosevelt had turned down his requests for an executive order forbidding contracts to firms which do not meet labor legislation standards and said the government was competitively unfair to firms engaged in collective bargaining by giving large contracts to low-wage concerns.

A.F. OF L. LEADERS STAGE FIST FIGHT IN HOTEL LOBBY

Dubinsky and Fay Clash on Racketeer Issue.

with an innocuous statement of policy against racketeering.

The story of witnesses to the encounter was:

Dubinsky, his daughter Jean, Umphey, and a young man were seated at a table in the hotel café when Fay came over and in profane language declared the antiracketeer resolution was "the lousiest" he had ever read. Dubinsky requested that he be left alone.

Fay did not take kindly to the suggestion and when the party walked into the lobby he and his aid followed. The battling began and continued for a hundred feet or more before others were able to break it up. Miss Dubinsky was knocked down in the scuffle.

Three Talking at Table.

Some witnesses reported that Fay and Browne had been at a table with Maj. George L. Berry former United States senator from Tennessee and head of the Pressmen's International union for many years.

Berry once attained notoriety by his effort to sell his marble quarries in Tennessee to the government for $5,000,000 and Browne more recently has been in the news as the boss and protector of such underlings as Willie Bioff, who recently served a jail sentence in Chicago for pandering; John P. Nick of St. Louis, sentenced to five years in prison for accepting bribes to restrain members of his union from demanding a pay raise, and Nick Circella of Chicago, who once served a jail sentence for assault to commit murder.

Seek End of Racketeering.

The Dubinsky resolution on racketeering, the only one offered the convention so far, declares that it long has been realized that "a formula must be devised which will preserve the autonomy" of subsidiary organizations and still leave the A. F. of L. with sufficient power to remove officials who degrade the labor movement by racketeering.

It urges that the executive council of the federation be given authority to dismiss any officials of affiliates who are convicted of offenses involving moral turpitude or the use of their official positions for private gain.

Has No Police Powers.

At present the federation has no police powers and the affiliated unions take their own measures against crooks. If the proposed powers are given the executive council, George Browne would be one of the administrators. He is an A. F. of L. vice president and seems assured of reelection.

President Green was with Dubinsky's executive board this afternoon to hear protests that the A. F. of L. had failed to keep two promises. They were: [1] That the federation would cease to levy a war chest assessment to fight C. I. O. and [2] that no unions would be suspended except by action at the annual convention.

DIES ALLEGES NAZIS' PLOT TO RULE U. S. TRADE

Consuls Linked with Vast Scheme for Control.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—Disclosure of an alleged program for German control of American industry highlighted a 500 page report on Nazi activities in the United States which was made public by the Dies committee on un-American activities today.

The report charged propaganda and espionage operations by German consuls and commercial representatives in this country. The main objective of Adolf Hitler's government is the economic penetration of the business structure on this continent, it was charged.

Consular Agents Named.

The committee report contained 267 pages of exhibits—photostatic reproductions of correspondence, telegrams, radiograms, bank deposit slips etc., seized by committee investigators in various parts of the country.

Among the names appearing in the correspondence are those of Dr. Hans Thomsen, chargé d'affaires of the German embassy; Dr. Hans Borchers, German consul general in New York; Frieheer Ulrich von Gienänth, and Heribert von Strempel, attachés of the German embassy here, and Fritz Kellermaier, commercial attaché of the German embassy at the German consulate in New York.

The committee listed the following organizations which it charged were active in spreading Nazi propaganda in this country.

1. The Trans-ocean News Service, headed by Dr. Manfred Zapp, whom the committee described as the chief Nazi propaganda agent in the United States. The committee charged that the purpose of this organization, which is not connected with any United States news service, was to send German information to newspapers and individuals both here and in Latin America; that its officers kept in close touch with the German embassy and with officials in Berlin; that when pressed for funds it consulted the embassy; that it received $135,956 from Jan. 1, 1939, to Aug. 1, 1940, only $7,705 of which came from the sale of its service, and most of the remainder coming from the embassy and from Berlin.

Nazi Secret Party Included.

2. The foreign division of the National Socialist party, information on which had not previously been available, the committee said, because its activities were "shrouded in diplomatic immunity."

3. The German Library of Information, in New York, which the committee said spent $341,694 from May, 1936, to August, 1940, sending information to a mailing list of 70,000.

4. The German railroad information office, ostensibly formed to encourage prospective visitors to Germany, but actually, the committee charged, a disseminator of propaganda. The committee regarded it significant that after the war had virtually stopped travel in Germany the agency was still spending $10,000 monthly. From January, 1933, to August, 1940, the report said, the agency disbursed $1,339,759.

5. The American Fellowship forum, formed by German nationals, the report charged, "for the purpose of propagandizing on behalf of Nazi Germany." Its effort, the report said, was to get American business men to thinking of post-war foreign trade problems.

6. The Chemical Marketing company, from which were seized the so called business plans. These involved the establishment of a German bank in New York, with branches in cities of large German population, and the consolidation of all industrial activities in any way related to Germany, particularly thru patent rights and cross-patenting licenses.

Dr. Frederick Kertess, head of the Chemical Marketing company, was described by the committee as the leader in the campaign to control American industry. The committee reported that on May 4, 1939, four months before Germany's entry into war, Dr. Kertess sent a cablegram to Germany saying in part: "Together with friends ready for war."

BOSTON'S NAZI CONSUL DENIES HE SPREADS PROPAGANDA IN U. S.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 21 (AP).—Dr. Herbert Scholz, German consul in Boston, tonight described the Trans-Ocean News service mentioned in the Dies committee White Paper as "merely another article of commerce."

Scholz said that to him Manfred Zapp, named by the Dies report as head of the agency, was "a salesman interested in marketing his product.

"The consul of any country has the duty to assist any of his countrymen who call on him," Scholz said. "It is customary for business men in foreign countries to inquire of their own consulates about markets and to make contacts in business relationships. To me Trans-Ocean News service is merely another article of commerce."

Calls Financing Charge Untrue.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 21 (AP).—Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, German consul at San Francisco, denied today that his consulate had been financing a propaganda news service for papers. He referred to a Dies committee allegation that the German consulate at San Francisco was linked with activities in the United States of a German news agency, "Trans-Ocean News service." "We buy service for our own use," Capt. Wiedemann said. "I can deny emphatically that our office is buying the service for the benefit of any one but ourselves."

HEMINGWAY WEDS MISS GELLHORN, ALSO AN AUTHOR

Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 21 [Special].—Ernest Hemingway and Martha Gellhorn were married here today by a justice of the peace. Both are novelists and war correspondents. He is 41 years old, she is 28.

Mrs. Ernest Hemingway.

Their careers touched when both were behind the lines of the Loyalist army in the Spanish civil war. His newest book, "For Whom the Bell Tolls," concerns that war and is dedicated to his bride. Other successful books of his include "A Farewell to Arms" and "The Sun Also Rises." Her works include "The Trouble I've Seen" and, recently, "A Stricken Field."

Hemingway achieved some extra-literary prominence in 1937 when Max Eastman, an essayist, raised a question of whether Hemingway had hair on his chest.

Both the bridegroom and the bride have been married before, he twice. His family is prominent in Oak Park, Ill. Hers is prominent in St. Louis, Mo.

Newspaper Manager, Wife Shot to Death in Auto

Midland, Tex., Nov. 21 (AP).—James P. Harrison, 38, business manager of the Midland Reporter Telegram, and his wife, Mrs. Lilyan Harrison, 24, today were found shot to death in their automobile in the driveway of their new home. An automatic pistol was in the car.

SHY PLANES, BUT U.S. ARMY PUSHES PILOT TRAINING

Randolph Field Students Now Number 355.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Randolph Field, Tex., Nov. 21.—Despite a shortage of airplanes and airplane engines, the air corps is pressing forward its pilot training program at this aviation school center to provide pilots for the rapidly expanding air force.

Arrow indicates Randolph field.

The training center here has but one airplane to every 3.79 men. To function properly the school should have one plane for every 2.85 men. There are sufficient Wright 400 horse power engines for training planes, but a shortage of the Pratt & Whitney 450 horse power engines, which means that planes powered by the latter engines must be laid up when their engines need overhauling.

Reduce Training Hours.

In the rush to get sufficient pilots for the air corps the hours of training have been reduced from 315 to 215. Nonetheless, Brig. Gen. John P. Brooks, commanding the field, and Brig. Gen. Gerald C. Brant, commander of the gulf coast air corps training center, insist that standards of flight instruction have not changed. The center has continued to graduate 52 per cent of the trainees and accidents have not increased. Until last week when two student flyers were killed, the field had had only one death in 165,000 flying hours from the first of the year.

Seventeen newspaper men, invited by Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the army, to inspect the progress of the rearmament program at a dozen army establishments, spent Thanksgiving day looking over the field. There are 355 students here, but a class of 425 is on its way. The extent of expansion contemplated here is demonstrated by the fact that Gen. Brooks is planning to train 6,891 pilots here in the first six months of 1941.

Fed by 18 Civil Schools.

Pilot training is operating on a schedule which calls for 7,000 pilots by July 1, 1941. Recently the general staff stepped up the quota to 12,000 a year. However, the air corps is just getting under way on its 7,000 pilots a year schedule. Until this month pilots actually were being turned out at the rate of 3,000 a year.

The school here is fed by 18 civil-military schools. Additional schools are to be established. By February it is expected that the schools will have a capacity of 4,051 students. These students receive 10 weeks of training in each of the three successive schools—primary, basic and advanced.

Upon completion of primary training these hundreds of young flyers come here for 10 weeks of basic flying instruction and from here are sent to the advanced school at Kelly field, Tex., for advanced training.

Become Second Lieutenants.

Graduates are commissioned as second lieutenants in the air reserve and are assigned to the general headquarters air forces. Some cadets are graduated before they reach their 21st birthday.

During the training period flying cadets are paid $75 a month in addition to food, clothing, quarters, and medical and dental attention. Second lieutenants are paid $205 a month.

The field has more than 450 officers, 3,000 enlisted men, and 350 airplanes on its 2,400 acres.

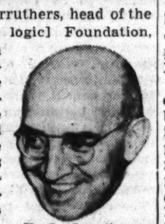
RAPE CHARGE IS FRAMEUP, SAYS KUM BUM GRAD



H. G. Carruthers.

Hugh Greer Carruthers, head of the Neological [new logic] Foundation, 32 West Randolph street, will be arraigned in the Felony court today on a charge of raping a girl 12 years old. The foundation is called an organization for instructing persons in self-development. A leaflet put out by the foundation describes Carruthers as one of seven Caucasians ever to have emerged from priesthood in the Tibetan lamasery of Kum Bum at the Great Blue lake, Northeast Tibet.

Carruthers, who is 74 years old, is alleged to have attacked the girl last July when she visited the foundation offices with an aunt.

"The charge is ridiculous. It is a frameup by a clique of 9 or 10 members of the Neological society who are trying to get control of the foundation," he told reporters.

Carruthers spent four years and seven months in a New York prison for robbery. He was convicted in Albany in 1925.

CHILD, MOTHER DIE, VICTIMS OF A TRAIN WHISTLE

Gastonia, N. C., Nov. 21 (AP).—A funeral bell and not the locomotive bell that he liked so well tolled today for 16 month old Lawrence Chavis and his mother.

Lawrence, so the neighbors said, liked to watch the train roar by his home; he'd cock his head when the bell rang and imitate the whistle.

Yesterday he apparently decided that such a friendly thing as a train wouldn't hurt a little fellow. So while his mother was busy with the housework, he slipped away and headed for the tracks.

His mother saw the train bearing down upon him. Screaming, she ran to his side, threw her arms about him, and there they died together.

SWITCHMAN FATALLY HURT.

John Stokes, 46 years old, 1631 North Monitor avenue, a switchman for the Milwaukee railroad, died in Washington boulevard hospital last night of injuries suffered Thursday in the South Hump railroad yards in Bensenville when he fell between two cars.

Planes Are Similar

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21 [Special].—Two new military airplanes are now undergoing tests, the War department announced today.

One is the B-25, a medium bombardment plane, being tested by air corps officers and engineers at the plant of North American Aviation, Inc., at Inglewood, Cal.

It is an all metal monoplane of convention design with an internally braced midwing. The tricycle landing gear is fully retractable. It is powered with two 14 cylinder, two row, radial, air cooled engines. Propellers are of the controlable pitch, constant speed, full feathering type. It carries a crew of five and full navigation and radio equipment.

The other is the PT-20A, a primary training plane manufactured by the Ryan Aeronautical company at San Diego, Cal. It is being tested at Wright field, Dayton, O. It is similar to the PT-20 except that it is powered with a Kinner 5 cylinder radial engine of 125 horsepower at 1925 revolutions per minute, while the PT-20 was equipped with a Menasco engine. The change in engines has necessitated changing the outer appearance of the nose.

CALL ALUMINUM STRIKE; TIES UP DEFENSE ORDERS

New Kensington, Pa., Nov. 22, Friday (AP).—William Hanker, spokesman for local No. 2, Aluminum Workers' union [C. I. O.], said his organization early today ordered a strike of 7,500 employés of the main plant of the Aluminum Company of America. The company has been operating 24 hours a day on defense orders.

Hanker said more than 1,000 union members voted for the strike because "the company refused to discharge a mill worker who threatened the life of a union representative."

Hanker said the mill worker threatened Tom Davis, chairman of the union's sheet mill committee, when Davis demanded that the man pay his union dues. The worker also threatened the lives of Davis' wife and child, Hanker said. Two dozen union representatives had conferred with R. M. Ferry, superintendent of the New Kensington plant, but he, according to Hanker, felt the demand for the employé's discharge "was not justified."

The company has been working on orders for airplane firms. Its cooking utensil subsidiary has been busy on a $1,200,000 army order for 25,500 field kitchens.

FANNIE MAY CANDY Helps Me Play the Parts I Like Best!

JANET LOGAN, lovely radio star, who plays the leading role in the network serial "Stepmother," is a Fannie May Candy fan. After recently visiting the Fannie May Kitchens, Miss Logan said

● "Next to the applause of my radio listeners, I enjoy most the applause I get from my friends when I serve Fannie May Candies in my home. It's a real help in my work at the studio, too, because I've learned to depend on my favorite Fannie May Creams to give me that extra 'pep' that rehearsals and broadcasts frequently demand—days when my role takes every bit of energy I can put into it. When I saw it being made in the spotless Fannie May Kitchens—with all the luscious goodness that goes into it—I knew why Fannie May Candy couldn't help play a 'star' part on any occasion."

HOPES TO TEACH FLYING SAFELY IN 'CAPTIVE' GLIDERS

Details of a simple plan, intended to revolutionize the teaching of gliding in motorless planes by making it possible to give complete instruction quickly and close to the ground were revealed yesterday by Eugene F. McDonald, radio manufacturer and flying enthusiast. The plan, which will receive its first working test in about two weeks, calls for using an artificially created windstream to train soaring pilots in gliders anchored a short distance in the air by a rope to ground.

In this way, McDonald said, the trainees would experience, before their first real flights, every soaring motion higher up except a loop. And at the same time their instructors would be able to watch and correct their handling of the controls at close range.

McDonald explained that past performances have shown that the greatest hazards in gliding are in the first trips into the upper atmosphere when the beginners are thrown too much on their own resources to meet soaring problems now not possible to duplicate in preliminary ground training.

"If this plan works—and we can't be sure yet that it will—at least 75 per cent of the danger in learning to glide will be eliminated," he said. "This method should make it possible to give adequate training to 10 new pilots a day. With the accident possibilities reduced, thousands of young men may be attracted to the sport, and this country may have a new reservoir of potential airplane pilots."

The artificial wind for training the motorless flyers would be generated by three 10 foot propellers, each mounted on an automobile chassis.

Preliminary tests of the wind stream from one auto driven propeller showed a velocity of 47 miles per hour at the propeller and 32 at a distance of 30 feet. A glider needs a velocity of only 20 miles per hour for the takeoff. Propellers on two additional automobiles were deemed necessary to give the wind stream proper width.

The theory is the same as that of the wind tunnel now used for airplanes but vastly less expensive. The motorless plane would be anchored to the ground on a 30 foot rope, and would not be able to rise above the wind stream.

Plan Fund Campaign Here to Aid Greek War Relief

Presidents of 350 local Greek-American groups will meet Sunday afternoon in the Roosevelt room of the Morrison hotel to elect Illinois directors of the Greek War Relief society. Chicago offices of the society are in suite 715 of the Chicago Temple building, 77 West Washington street, according to Harry A. Reckas, director of the drive in the midwestern states. Attorney John C. Gekas is executive secretary here. The society hopes to raise $10,000,000 nationally for war relief.

BROOKS LEAVES TO TAKE HIS SEAT IN SENATE TODAY

Several Hundred Friends See Him Off.

A crowd of several hundred friends and supporters gathered before train time at the Union station yesterday to see Wayland Brooks off to Washington, where he is scheduled to be sworn in as a United States senator today.

Brooks, Mrs. Brooks, and their son, Russell, arrived only a few minutes before the departure of the Pennsylvania's Liberty Limited. Brooks was kept shaking hands so long it was necessary to hold the train a minute, and it was not until the family climbed up the steps that the news photographers could take a flash of all three together.

No Speech Making.

There was no speech making and, except for the bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums that Mrs. Brooks carried, there were no flowers.

The senator-elect said he will look for an apartment for the family's use during the remainder of the present session of congress. Mrs. Brooks will remain in Washington, but Russell will return to his classes in the Todd school at Woodstock.

The party which accompanied Brooks to the capital to witness the brief induction ceremony was headed by Werner W. Schroeder, Republican national committeeman, and included representatives of all branches of the party in the state.

Green Names Committee.

Other friends included Judge Julius H. Miner of the Circuit court; Park Livingston, one of those elected as state university trustee on Nov. 5, George H. Lennon, and Grenville Beardsley. Several were accompanied by their wives.

Dwight H. Green, governor-elect, announced the appointment of a committee that will represent him in all arrangements for the state inaugural on Jan. 3.

Those he named were Ferre C. Watkins, chairman; National Committeeman Schroeder, State Chairman Berve, County Chairman John T. Dempsey, State Senator Arnold P. Benson of Batavia, Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, and Gilbert E. Keebler, a close friend.

AMERICAN NURSE REPORTED SEIZED ON JAPANESE SHIP

HONOLULU, T. H., Nov. 21 (AP).—A group of Americans returning to the United States from Japan reported here today that Miss Edna Lawrence, of Ontario, Cal., a missionary nurse, had been removed from the Japanese ship Yawata Maru at Yokohama and charged with violating Japan's peace preservation law, a military statute.

Miss Lawrence, 46 years old, had served 20 years at the Severance Medical Union school at Seoul, Corea. The group of fellow Americans, passengers of the Yawata Maru, said she boarded the ship at Yokohama.

The Americans also reported Joseph P. Grew, American ambassador to Japan, was aboard the ship at the time, bidding farewell to some friends, and was informed of the incident. They said they understood he planned to make representations to the Japanese government. The Yawata Maru arrived here today.

HUNT FOR CRAZED GUNMAN WHO SHOT CAB DRIVER

Police searched last night for a bandit who shot a cab driver four times early yesterday at the end of a wild ride in which the driver sought to attract the attention of police by violating traffic regulations.

The driver, William Meikel, 30 years old, 2539 Iowa street, remained in a critical condition in Washington Boulevard hospital. He was driving a drink crazed passenger when the passenger drew a gun and demanded money.

Meikel drove on the wrong side of the street and otherwise broke traffic rules until he sighted a parked police car at Jackson boulevard and Western avenue. He called for help, but the bandit shot him and fled.

2 PHYSICISTS PUT SOME SNAP INTO STORY OF RUBBER

Some of the secrets of the physical world, including what happens to a rubber band when it is stretched, will be unmasked today at the University of Chicago where more than 200 of the nation's foremost research scientists will assemble for the 237th meeting of the American Physical society.

What happens to the rubber band is one of life's little mysteries. The layman, if he commands a ready perception of scientific language and concepts, will learn from Prof. Hubert M. James of Purdue university and Dr. Eugene Guth of the University of Notre Dame that while rubber appears to be one kind of substance, it actually has the properties of three.

Like a solid it has a definite shape; like a liquid it easily can be forced to change shape; like a gas its internal tension increases when it is warmed and decreases when it is cooled. Roll these three properties into one, say the scientists, and out snaps elasticity.

If the layman isn't satisfied he can stay a little longer and learn that rubber is a chain of molecules each composed of a chain of atoms. It is the knots between the chains which expand and contract, giving rubber its elasticity. If the layman is still not satisfied he will be invited to enrol in Prof. James' or Dr. Guth's classes.

MOVE TO ALTER CENSOR BOARD GETS ATTENTION

Numerous inquiries have been received from parent, civic, church and women's organizations concerning the proposal to liberalize motion picture censorship and remove the censorship authority from the police department. Ald. H. L. Brody [39th], chairman of the city council judiciary committee, said yesterday.

Representatives of several groups will be on hand next week when the committee holds public hearings on the question. Ald. Brody said his committee was proceeding with plans for the hearings despite the stand taken Wednesday by Mayor Kelly, who commended the police censor board and said he saw no reason for a change.

Ald. Earl B. Dickerson [2d] has offered the proposal to amend the censorship ordinance. It calls for a censor board divorced from the police department and provides censorship only for those pictures to be viewed by minors. Censorship of pictures for adults would be eliminated.

Mrs. Richard M. McClure, 1747 West 107th street, president of the Better Films council of Chicago, said representatives of the council would attend the hearings. She declared she is opposed to an appointive censorship body.

The Illinois Parent-Teacher congress also will be represented at the hearings, according to Mrs. Frank A. Dahm, 4915 North Kilpatrick avenue, chairman of the Chicago Affairs committee.

The Catholic church, which several years ago organized the Legion of Decency to better motion pictures, is expected to have representatives at the hearing.

FLYING TO CANAL ZONE SIMPLE AS A TROLLEY RIDE

That's the Conclusion of Survey Pilots.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., Nov. 21.—The initial survey flight over the short-cut air route from Chicago to Central America ended this afternoon when American Export Airlines' flying boat Transatlantic returned to the Lake Pontchartrain anchorage it left six days ago. In the interval the plane covered 3,560 miles in 26 hours 45 minutes flying time.

Capt. Dick McMakin Jr., skipper on today's 940 mile leg from Belize, British Honduras, covered the distance in 6 hours 30 minutes at an average speed of 144 miles an hour. Average for the entire trip was 133 miles an hour. Capt. McMakin flew today at 8,500 feet and had the assistance of a 23 mile tail wind.

Convincing Demonstration.

The survey trip, McMakin said, provides convincing evidence of the feasibility of the service American Export Airlines has asked permission to give. The route is over tropic seas and along friendly coasts that offer havens for either land planes or flying boats. The weather, virtually at its worst at this time of year in these latitudes, proved to be no problem.

McMakin and his fellow captains, Charles F. Blair Jr. and Dick Mitchell, who shared command of the plane, disclosed that the trip completed today had been made on less than 24 hours' notice. The flight was an experiment in determining the ability of the airline's personnel in meeting problems concerned with long range operations over routes where no ground organization exists.

"The trip shows that airline flying over the proposed airway is merely a routine procedure," said McMakin. "This is, of course, the ideal in any transportation service. This was in no way a stunt flight. Altho we never had been over the route before, we knew the problems we would encounter and the capabilities of our equipment so well that so far as incident is concerned we might have been running a trolley car in Chicago."

Seeks Approval of Service.

The entire program was undertaken primarily to make a record for the company's application to the Civil Aeronautics authority. American Export Airlines ultimately expects to fly the route in four engined land planes but until these can be procured the company probably will inaugurate service—if it is approved—in new Sikorsky Clipper ships, three of which now are building at Hartford, Conn.

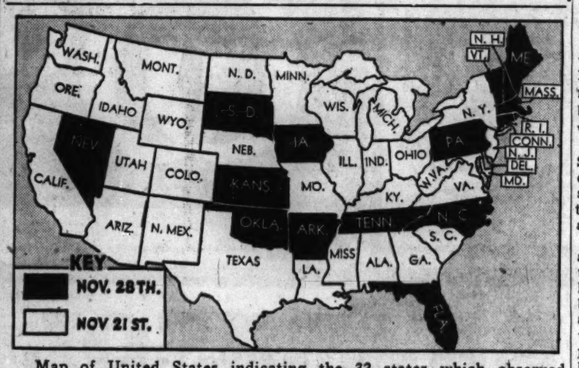
The airline's proposed route from Chicago to the Canal Zone will be 2,580 miles in length, the Chicago-New Orleans link being flown by Chicago and Southern airlines. Connection at New Orleans airport will be made with American Export's planes, operating either from land or sea.

This route is some 1,100 miles shorter than the existing service offered by Braniff airways to Brownsville, Texas, and thence to the Canal Zone in Pan American airways' planes that fly to Mexico City, Guatemala, and down thru the Central American countries. At present Pan American airways makes one overnight stop between Brownsville and Cristobal.

Easy One Day Hop.

The survey flight by American Export air lines indicates that the New Orleans-Canal Zone route across the Gulf of Mexico can easily be flown in one day with either one or two intermediate stops. These stops would make connection with American Export's new subsidiary line, Aero Transport of Central America, which already has internal airlines in each of the seven Central American countries and is the world's largest air freight carriers.

How States Celebrate Thanksgiving



Map of United States indicating the 32 states which observed Thanksgiving yesterday and the 16 which will celebrate next Thursday, Nov. 28.

FEASTS SPREAD AT FT. SHERIDAN AND GREAT LAKES

Holiday Tables Groan in City Homes.

Old Mother Chicago went to her cupboard yesterday and found nearly 30,000 tons of food for her orphans, destitute, homeless, her soldiers and sailors, and inmates of institutions. Most of them ate the traditional meal of turkey and trimmings.

Countless other tons of holiday foodstuffs were consumed by other citizens in homes and in public restaurants. Pompano, turkey, and crepes suzette were served to Grace Moore and Lily Pons, the opera singers, in Jacques, French restaurant.

While Thanksgiving tables were being cleared away last minute preparations were completed for the arrival today of Santa Claus—harbinger of the holiday next on the calendar. He is scheduled to arrive on a United Air Lines Mainliner at 11 a. m. at Chicago airport. He will parade thru the loop shopping district in the afternoon.

Feast at Fort Sheridan.

Fort Sheridan's 5,150 enlisted men had the biggest spread to be thankful for. Tables groaned under more than 10 tons of food. There were four tons of turkeys, one ton of baked ham, 510 gallons of oyster stew, 1,400 heads of lettuce, 510 pounds of cranberry sauce, 5,150 ears of sweet corn, 730 square feet of mince and pumpkin pie, 1,320 pounds of cake, 5,150 pounds of nuts and candy, 5,150 cigars, and as many packages of cigarets.

Of those who sat down to this spread only 15 were newcomers from Cook county who had joined the army under the draft act. The remaining 163, who were inducted Monday and Tuesday, returned to their homes for the day.

At the Great Lakes Naval Training station 4,000 sailors, most of them recent recruits, were treated to a Thanksgiving dinner equally lavish. They started out with cream of oyster soup, sailed thru turkey, baked ham, candied yams, pumpkin pie, ice cream, and wound up with coffee and cigarets.

Menu at Hines Hospital.

Disabled veterans in the Hines Veterans' hospital picked 2,300 pounds of turkeys bare and found room for sweet potatoes, broccoli, pumpkin pie, nuts, fruit, and coffee. Miss Kathryn McHenry, chief dietician, said 1,700 dinners were served.

At the Bridewell inmates not only were served 1,600 pounds of chicken [about one pound per person], but they were entertained by night club entertainers who are friends of Supt. Edward Denemark. A special meal also was served at the county jail.

Patients at County hospital were fed a ton of turkeys, 13 crates of grapefruit, 20 gallons of oysters, 20 hampers of sweet potatoes, and 80 pounds of orange gelatin. Holiday feasts were spread at the juvenile detention home and the United States Marine hospital.

Orphans' Home Provided For.

Following an annual custom a Chicago hotel took a complete Thanksgiving meal to St. Vincent's orphanage, where it was served to 150 children 4 years old and younger. Approximately 1,000 underprivileged children were fed turkey and an assortment of side dishes at Harry Block's restaurant at 114 East Cermak road.

In more than a score of restaurants and institutions homeless men and other destitute persons were given free meals. Among them were the Pacific Garden mission, 650 South State street; the Volunteer Rescue army, 1553 Madison street; Northwestern University settlement; Christopher House, 2507 Greenview avenue; Gad's Hill settlement, and the Erie Neighborhood house.

BABY SUFFOCATED IN BED.

Richard Gouwens, 5 weeks old, was found suffocated in his bed when his parents arose yesterday in their home at 12027 Union avenue.

Winter Holds No Terrors for Tucson Has 'Sun Queen'

(Picture on back page.)

Tucson, Ariz., Nov. 21 [Special].—All Tucson, including Shirley Schaefer, is looking forward to the winter with complacency. Tucson feels that way because its mean temperature won't be as mean as at most other places, and Shirley feels that way because she was picked today to be winter "Sun Queen." As such she will officiate at various community festivities. Shirley is young and blondish.

625 HAMS GIVEN EMPLOYES.

Holland, Mich., Nov. 21 [Special].—The Holland Furnace company today gave away 625 hams to their employés in the home office and plant of the company here.

ADMITS KILLING, LEAVING VICTIM'S BODY IN ALLEY

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 21 [Special].—Police announced today that David Beder, 51 years old, had confessed the murder of Leo Sopczynski, 60, whose body was found late last night wrapped in burlap.

Beder told police, they said, that Sopczynski came to his home yesterday and demanded money. Beder said he gave him 25 cent and because that was all he had Sopczynski berated and struck him.

At this, Beder went on, he seized a piece of pipe and beat Sopczynski to death. He kept the body in his home until after dark, when he bound it in burlap, loaded it into a pushcart, and hauled it to the alley where it was found. Passersby reported seeing Beder and the burlap bundle, and this directed police to Beder's home. There they found evidence of a furious fight. Beder is a junk dealer. His victim was a gardener.

BARGAINS WITH COURTS AND WITH PROSECUTORS.

Once a judge sitting on the federal bench in Chicago said, "You cannot bargain with a federal court." What happened to Al Capone thereafter is well remembered history, but what Judge Wilkerson said seems to have escaped the memory of President Roosevelt's department of justice.

Lawyers for Tom Pendergast, the jailbird ex-boss of the Democratic machine in Kansas City, went into the federal court in that city with a unique plea for the dismissal of a conspiracy charge against their client. They said that when Pendergast pleaded guilty to income tax frauds and went to prison Maurice Milligan, the United States district attorney in Kansas City, had promised him that he would not be prosecuted on any other federal charges.

The bargain was admitted by the representatives of the department of justice, who said they believed it should be kept. Judge A. Lee Wyman told them, "The district attorney has no right to bind this court," and ordered the trial to proceed.

Judge Wyman's action forced Prosecutor Milligan into the open. The following day he came into court, confessed his shameful bargain, and himself moved to dismiss the indictments. Faced with a prosecutor unwilling to do his duty, Judge Wyman granted the motion to dismiss. Quite obviously, a prosecution under such circumstances would have been farcical, but in repudiating the bargain that Milligan had made, Judge Wyman laid down a rule that every court, federal, state or local, should follow faithfully.

The implications of the Pendergast case were bad enough in themselves. The Roosevelt administration needed to take the political curse off its support by the corrupt city machines by prosecuting a few of the corruptionists. To persuade one such corruptionist to become the centerpiece of a Roman holiday, Mr. Roosevelt's prosecutor promised to shrive him of all other federal crimes of which he might be guilty.

Pendergast was paroled from prison before the election and his old machine, functioning with somewhat lessened efficiency under his nephew, delivered Kansas City for the third term and its rubber stamp senator, Truman. Not until then was the public let in on Milligan's bargain.

But the general proposition involved is even more disturbing than the particular one. A prosecutor is an agent of the people to bring those suspected of crime to trial and to present the evidence against them. It is recognized that political prejudice may actuate some of his prosecutions, and to protect the citizens against such persecution by authority, the Anglo-Saxon peoples have over centuries built up a system of protections, trial by jury, habeas corpus, and the like.

But, except for the grand jury, the people have developed little defense against the opposite evil, which is the failure of their agents to protect them against criminals. The power to excuse crime is far more dangerous than the power to indulge in arbitrary and unjust prosecutions because it is hedged by fewer safeguards.

It is bad enough that men should be prosecuted criminally because they have displeased the New Dealers. But the peddling of criminal indulgences to favored lieutenants of the Roosevelt political machine is intolerable.

There is proof that such immunities have been granted in some cases. There is a strong presumption that they have been granted in many others. It must be remembered that when a prosecution is smothered, the evidence gathered by incorruptible investigating agencies outside the department of justice is normally smothered with it. The crime goes unnoticed with the pardon. One of the most disturbing symptoms of what is going on is the manner in which several prosecuting officials who thought more of their oaths of office than of the necessities of the Democratic machine have found themselves hoisted into innocuity in the judiciary.

If federal prosecutors are permitted to excuse crime thru bargains with criminals, then the worst possible type of government by men instead of laws has been inflicted on the country. Against such catastrophe our surest defense is enforcement by every court of the rule that the prosecutor cannot bind the court to his unholy bargains.

A STRONGER OPERA.

It is gratifying to learn that the opera this year is enjoying an attendance materially ahead of last year's. It is gratifying not only as an evidence of the success of an important cultural institution in the community but also as an indication that the people of Chicago and the middle west are alive to the great improvements that have taken place in the quality of opera here since last season. The effort spent on the new chorus and ballet, in strengthening the orchestra, in bettering the productions at almost every point, have been appreciated by the public as well as by the artists and technicians concerned.

Opera is an institution which deserves every encouragement not only, or principally, for the stimulus which it gives to the business of shops, hotels, and restaurants, but chiefly because it enables the individual opera goer to share in one of the great cultural heritages of mankind. The news from Europe suggests all too plainly that if the institution and its traditions are to be kept alive America must do it. Chicago can be proud of the fact that it is playing its part at a critical hour.

AN EXPANDING WAR?

Speculation regarding extensions of the war to new sectors is increasing. As long as Hitler thought he could successfully invade England he had little reason to spread the war beyond western Europe. Now he may feel differently about it.

His best bet is to the south and the chief obstacle to his advance in this direction is the British fleet in the Mediterranean. The British command both the outlets and would be greatly embarrassed by the loss of either of them. The Italians in North Africa are threatening Suez but as yet not seriously. Gibraltar appears to be more vulnerable. It would not be necessary to capture the rock itself to command the sea gate. Much the same result could be achieved by establishing a strong air force anywhere within striking distance of the strait. Control of the air in the Gibraltar area would be sufficient to close this entrance to the Mediterranean for most purposes.

Why Hitler has not already attempted to gain this advantage is not altogether clear. It may well be that Gen. Franco does not want the Germans in Spain and despite the threat of German forces on his northern frontier has withheld permission to establish landing fields in the Gibraltar zone. Perhaps he reckons that a British Gibraltar is less of a menace to Spain than would be the presence of a German army. From the history of his country he knows that Spain can survive as an independent nation under the existing arrangement, but he cannot feel so sure about the future of his country and his own régime if he lets the Germans come in.

Italy is maneuvering eastward toward Suez and has sought to invade Greece from Albania. The Greek campaign may have been intended as a threat to Turkey or it may have been motivated by nothing more than a desire to acquire more territory at the expense of Greece and a better position from which to attack Egypt from the air. So far the campaign has accomplished nothing. Meanwhile, Italy's conduct toward France suggests that the Italians are not entirely comfortable in their German alliance and may be looking forward to an understanding with France to prevent the Germans from reducing Italy to the condition of a vassal.

Perhaps Hitler's course can be forecast from his recent action in expelling the French from Lorraine. He has already removed the Germans from the Baltic provinces and planted them in the portions of Poland which he intends to include in his reich. His present concern is to consolidate all the German speaking peoples in a single geographical area. Perhaps he will arrange with Russia for an exchange of the German-speaking Russians for the Czechs. When he has finished with these uprootings and transplantings he may feel that his mission has been accomplished, tho to many observers it would seem that his troubles had only begun.

MUNICH AND AFTER.

Sir Nevile Henderson was sent to Berlin as British ambassador to open the road for Mr. Chamberlain's attempt to find a way of getting along with Herr Hitler without war. He was entirely in accord with that undertaking and did his best. He tried to find reasons for Germany's political conditions and to understand them. Recently he said in London that at the time of the Munich conference Great Britain did not have a single Spitfire fighter plane, had only one or two experimental Hurricanes, and had exactly seven modern antiaircraft guns for the defense of London.

Goering, the head of the German air force, knew precisely the condition of Great Britain's defenses and its lack of air power and antiaircraft artillery. In friendly conversations the Nazi marshal told Henderson just what the British had and reminded him that if war came Germany would leave very little of London and nothing at all of Czecho-Slovakia. Henderson knew that was the prospect. Great Britain couldn't have warded off an air attack. The British people didn't know it. Their condition was not concealed from their future enemy. It was concealed from them.

Government policy, in defense against the disclosure of its errors and negligence, may be to keep the people uninformed or to mislead them. Public opinion formed upon misapprehensions may rebound upon the government and compel decisions which should not have been made.

Mr. Chamberlain had to preserve peace at Munich. Later the people wouldn't support him. Between Munich and the war not enough had been done for defense either in Great Britain or France. Nevertheless the war was undertaken.

Editorial of the Day

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

[As It Might Be Written.]
[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

The congress and the country will, I feel sure, pardon this personal campaign reminiscence. Just before the polls opened I made a frankly sentimental journey around the old home circuit. I recalled it was just 30 years ago that I first appeared as a candidate for public office—a seat in our New York senate. The world which you and I and all the rest of us knew in 1910 has gone. Time did not permit even the sketchiest review of the glorious and dreadful march of events. But to my friends and neighbors, so many of whom were young then, as I was, and are old now, as I am, I felt compelled to say that is obvious I shall not again enact this rôle. This is my swan song, my farewell tour.

You must believe me when I repeat what I said in my acceptance of the nomination last July. Conscience compelled me to violate the traditional injunction against the third term. Inevitably conjecture, sometimes jocular, more often malicious, often enough sincere, presented me as a fourth termer, a fifth termer, and so unto the end of the span. This occasion seems a fitting moment to take cognizance of such speculation and here and now to go on official record with as explicit a disavowal of further ambition as words can fashion.

The classic refusal is happily familiar. It expresses my position exactly. "If nominated, I shall not accept. If elected, I shall not serve." This is my commitment to congress and to the country. It is the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, as God, the country, and the congress are my witnesses.

I make this statement as the highest contribution I can offer to that national unity which citizens everywhere are pledging in this perilous hour, when none can foresee what the morrow may bring.

A united America, we all devoutly believe, is an invulnerable America, an invincible America. The oath is given. Long live democracy!

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office.

HOLIDAY HANGOVER.

Good-by, Thanksgiving day! Now to put the football season to bed. Last call for refugees from the Midway at Dyche stadium!

* * *

The Linemaster's recent birthday bore numerals which approximated the score of last year's Harvard-Chicago game. Therefore he has decided to abolish birthdays.

* * *

To get a free swing at any holiday that does not fall on a Saturday or Sunday, we have to prepare two columns in one day. But before we took over this job we worked on every holiday for some 30 years. The answer to all of which is: "What of it?" We've had a lot of fun, missing holidays.

* * *

If you want some reading to supplement the movie "Brigham Young," try a novel by Susan Ertz called "The Proselyte," published about four years ago. The author is English, but she has put into her prose the feeling of the wild land toward which the Mormon hand carts trekked.

* * *

No Christmas shopping list will be complete until it contains a notation on the Line Book of 1940. This by-product of the column is scheduled for publication next Friday.

* * *

Once in a while a constant reader advises us to keep something out of the column. "Keep politics out of the column." . . . "Keep the war out." . . . "Keep sports out." . . . So it goes. To demonstrate a willingness to coöperate, we have decided to keep limericks out of the column.

* * *

A general information test has demonstrated that we know practically nothing about advertising slogans, comic strip characters, and early brands of automobiles. Just another example of the uselessness of the higher education!

NOVEMBER MUSINGS.

Now is the time to remember,
In the comforting days of November,
In the comforting, quieting, cozy days,
When a coverlet of autumnal haze
Protects the earth like low brooding wings—
Time to recall, now, those precious things
We cared for, the joyous songs we sung
When life was gay and the year was young.

Now is the season to dream of
The glamor that only a gleam of
Remains, yet never entirely departs
From the secret depths of our inmost hearts . . .
The crops are all safely harvested now,
The hay's stowed away in the big barn's mow—
But where are the butterflies that flew
Above the meadow? I wish I knew!

Eolus.

When Pryor Panicked 'Em.

Before you ring down the curtain on bands, let me contribute my favorite Sousa and Pryor yarn. In the late spring of 1900, 90 days to the day before the Democratic national convention was to convene in it, Kansas City's convention hall was gutted by fire. Civic leaders spurned offers of other cities to take the convention off Kansas City's hands, and from the smoking ruin there rose within the 90 days another convention hall, modern and fireproof! The convention over, the city took up the important matter of a formal dedication of its new hall. John Philip Sousa was engaged as the attraction.

The glad event was heralded far and wide. So it was only natural that from St. Joseph, a few miles upriver and home town of Arthur Pryor, came a delegation to pay homage to their favorite bandsman, then trombonist in the Sousa organization.

The program was well under way and a number of soloists had been heard without any recognition of Pryor. The impatient admirers from St. Joe stood it as long as they could, then one leather lung let go with a bellow, "P-R-Y-O-R!"

The cry was taken up by others of the delegation; but their appeals were instantly lost in the uneasy tenseness of impending panic. The yell had sounded unmistakably like "Fire!" Thousands of lives hung in the balance as the huge crowd rose as one.

While city dads mounted chairs on the platform and shouted, "Sit down! They want Arthur Pryor of St. Joe to play the trombone." Sousa pulled his men together in "The Stars and Stripes Forever!" By the time it was ended, order was restored.

The Sousa composition never was played with greater effect, and the next number on the program was an unscheduled trombone solo by that rising young artist, Arthur Pryor.

A VISION OF CHRISTMAS.

I am a child, and in a room apart
Are elders dressing up a Christmas tree
Behind closed doors. This treat they plan for me
That happiness may burgeon in my heart.
I wait outside. There comes a sudden dart
Of light; the door has yielded, and I see
A glimpse of their munificence to be
When the door swings, and Yuletide's revels start.

For here are gifts that glisten in the light—
Strength and forbearance gathered from afar
From kinsmen strong and sapient in their day.
My father arms me with his courage bright,
And on the top my mother sets a star—
The luster of her love along my way.

Neanderthal Man.

Isn't It True That—?

That the cheaper the perfume the stronger it smells, and the smaller the guy the louder he talks?

That when other folks' children misbehave, they are just plain naughty, but when your own act up they are tired or not feeling well?

That up to a certain age your offspring think you are very intelligent, and then all of a sudden decide that they know it all, and are surprised that you could be so dumb and live? Veeceegee.

As I watch the styles, I can't make up my mind whether women are sheep or goats. Tabarin.

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Cutter will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

TRACKING DOWN FEVER.

As a rule, physicians have little difficulty in identifying the cause of fever. A rash or some local swelling will explain the matter. But now and then the symptom will prove puzzling. The patient will exhibit no characteristic signs pointing to disease in any region of the body. In fact, he may feel and appear well. Nevertheless, there may be a daily rise to 101 degrees Fahrenheit or even higher.

Recently the prevalence of Malta or undulant fever has accounted for many of these hitherto perplexing illnesses. Some families insist upon raw or unpasteurized dairy products. In this manner the organism may be swallowed and the ensuing malady is not difficult to recognize. Tularemia presents much the same situation but modern diagnostic methods will enable us to "spot" the culprit early.

Because tuberculosis possesses so many sides to its character, the tubercle germ should be suspected always whenever the mercury mounts for days in succession. More often than any other, this bacillus is responsible for a moderate, long continued fever. While at first the patient may feel well—after a time weakness, fatigue, lack of endurance, a rapid heart, sweating, etc., will be complained of. We should recall, however, that the infection may be mild, and that it can conceal itself so effectively that discovery is defied. Nevertheless, this disorder should be kept constantly in mind, altho the victim may not be coughing or displaying the slightest evidence of lung involvement.

Pus areas are experts at "hide and seek." They belong on "believe it or not" programs. A generous amount of trouble may come to one who is run down. A minute focus may be sufficient to send the temperature soaring. A pinhead abscess at the root of the tooth, or a tiny pocket in the bottom of a tonsil crypt may be quite enough. Not infrequently the removal of tonsils and adenoids in young children will be followed by the complete disappearance of an afternoon rise.

Of course many other conditions may need to be studied. But, after we have gone thru the entire list of factors, we may be forced to acknowledge that the origin cannot be detected. In this connection we must remember that the heat level of every one varies with the hours of the day, with exercise, with the digestion of food, and with the operation of certain organs.

For example, when evaporation from the skin is prevented for any reason — nervous or otherwise — the thermometer will record an advance. With too much or even too little activity on the part of the thyroid, the temperature may be above normal. Exhaustion, the result of fatiguing muscular action, must not be forgotten. Finally, there are individuals who do not fall within the average range. On the other hand, they seem perfectly well, even tho the reading climbs to 100.

Whether one should be alarmed or not depends upon whether the patient is below par, or is losing ground. If some drop in resistance is a part of the picture—the search must be continued until the source is determined. We dare not overlook any known disease. Naturally the simplest and most common causes should be studied thoroly to reduce the possibilities to a smaller number. Sometimes recovery occurs spontaneously, in which event no one is the wiser.

In any event common sense tells us that bed rest should be insisted upon for those whose temperature curves are out of line with good health.

HAIR LEAFLET.

M. K. writes: Would frequent shampoos help to prevent excessive dandruff and falling hair?

REPLY.

Yes. Use a mild soap, such as tincture of green soap. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on hair and scalp disorders.

NOT PERITONITIS.

R. L. R. writes: I have been suffering with severe pains in my back. Could this be peritonitis?

REPLY.

No. Probably arthritis, involving the spinal column or some muscle or ligament strain. In women the pelvic organs are frequently responsible. In peritonitis the symptoms are two cars forward [within the abdomen].

COMPLAINT OF A DRAFTEE.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—When I finished high school I got a job in an office so I could attend night school and get an engineering education. Some of the fellows I went to school with got jobs in machine shops, etc.

Now I am in the draft and will shortly be in the army. These other fellows are needed in the defense program and will not be drafted.

There is such a shortage of skilled mechanics that all shops will have to go on a 72 hour week in order to get the arms program done in time, but the President announces there will be no letdown in the wages and hours law.

This means that machinists at $1 an hour will get 48 hours straight time and 32 hours overtime for a total of $88 a week.

Meanwhile I will be in the army, putting in at least 84 hours a week for the magnificent sum of $8 a week and no overtime.

This may be democracy, but I don't think it is fair.

There is talk of drafting industry and not permitting industry to make a dollar out of this war, but just because a man belongs to a labor union I don't think he is entitled to 11 times as much money as we will get in the army, especially as we are going to do the fighting for these fellows and take a chance on losing a leg or an arm, or our eyes, and no job when we get back.

Why not draft these essential men into an industrial army at regular wages and let them do their bit for their country the same as we are going to do?

FRANK J. WILLIAMS.

NOW TRY THIS FEEDER BUS.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—The bus riding aldermen and reporters haven't really had a bus ride till they've ridden on the Central avenue feeder bus, if those relics can be dignified by the name of "bus."

Board the bus some morning during the rush hour at Belmont. There are plenty of buses, sometimes three in a block, all creeping along at a snail's pace.

Added to the usual dangers of the one man bus is the fact that the drivers apparently must drive with a watch in one hand and pause every few blocks in order to keep down to the "block a minute" running time. If this ride is worth 7 cents the motor coach is easily worth 25 cents. And thank the Lord for the new Grand avenue bridge! At least our livers have settled back into place.

NORTHWEST SIDER.

FROM BACK OF THE STAGE.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—I read with great pleasure Rita Fitzpatrick's article in Sunday's Tribune on the work of the stage technicians at the Civic Opera house while she watched them make the changes in Aida.

The unseen stage employé is not before the public, but many a slow opening curtain bringing thunderous applause was not only set up by them but created by them. This splendid article offsets some charges referring to the stage employés' union as a racket. All the massive stage settings you see in the movies are the work of members of our craft, to which I am proud to belong.

The finest stage lighting effects were developed by our craft. The first remote control stage switchboard was developed by one of our Chicago members.

Leading architects called in our members for consultation before building million dollar theaters. Our organization, over 50 years old, has worked thousands of benefits for the needy, and when the depression struck our organized workers in 1933 we asked no one for succor, but carried on, helping one another. Our members of military age in the last war volunteered en masse and helped to create camouflage sections in the United States army. So it does me good to have some one pat us on the back, as we are the unseen forces but believe in the old adage, "The show must go on."

GRANT L. JOHNSON,
Member Chicago Theatrical Protective Union.

IDEAS FOR THE "L" SERVICE.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—While we are talking about transportation facilities let me offer a couple of suggestions:

1. Make the "no smoking" signs larger—letters say three inches high, with signs at both ends, in the middle and on each door. Incidentally, on the Englewood "L" car in the morning between 8:15 and 8:45 some man gets on the train around 51st street and neglects to put out his after breakfast cigar. Maybe I'm supersensitive to cigar smoke, but by the time I reach the loop my eyes burn, my head aches, and I'm in a fog. The conductor of the car should see to it that all rules of the line are obeyed.

2. Make it a rule to have the front door for outgoing passengers and the back door for incoming passengers. A regular battle ensues each night around 5 when the outgoing and incoming passengers will not give in to each other and there's a deadlock right there on the platform. Of course, more cars on each train and shorter intervals between trains might unscramble this muddle.

And O for some method whereby seated passengers pay their 10 cent fare and those that hang on the straps all the way home only have to pay 5 cents.

HORTENSE.

STIRRING RACE HATRED.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Last Friday evening thousands of Chicagoans attended the six day bike races at the Chicago Stadium and all the fans were enjoying an evening of sport when from the judges' stand bellowed a challenge for "an American rider to beat a German rider to show the fans how England will smash Germany in Europe's death struggle."

What kind of propaganda and for whom, Mr. Mendel? Do you realize the riot you created, and the feeling of class hatred?

This is America; public gatherings are no place to vent hatred. We Americans attend and pay to see sport for that sport alone, and no bike rider, regardless of nationality, should be subjected to such opinions. GOLD STAR SISTER.

KNOWS WHAT WAR IS.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—That superb cartoonist, McCutcheon, has aptly summed up the war situation in the cartoon of Sunday's paper. More power to him. A copy should be sent to the President and every congressman.

My husband served in the last war; we bought Liberty Bonds "until it hurt," and I want to go on record now by saying before I would permit my son to fight in a foreign war I would shoot his trigger finger off, but if it came to invasion I would shoulder a gun myself.

MARGARET C. CLARK.

PREFERS TROLLEY BUSES.

Oak Park, Nov. 18.—You should start a campaign to replace gasoline buses or Diesel buses with electric trolley buses. Your recent articles indicate a need for better transportation.

As long as the people must pay, why not provide the best? Probably the reason electric buses are not used is that they return less per dollar invested. However, you can drive behind them without being overcome by exhaust fumes.

ANYHOW, A SWELL PAPER.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Gol ding it all, we are forever writing to this department praising this or knockin' that. Well, just to be different I want to give you a pat on the back. The Tribune is one "helluva" swell newspaper, political differences notwithstanding. And I mean it. M. E. H.

JOINT OWNERSHIP.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father and mother had a home in joint tenancy, but were about to lose the property thru foreclosure.

1. To save the property and to protect my investment, my father made over his half to me by signing a quitclaim deed. Now I have been told that my mother and I are [2] partners and [3] that a joint tenancy does not exist between us.

I cleared off part of the debts to the amount of 18 months' back interest on the loan, $400 off the principal, and six years' back taxes. This leaves a balance of $800 on the principal. Now when I tried to get a loan to put up a building on the other half of the property in order to put the whole thing on a paying basis, I find it cannot be done, as my mother is confined in the state insane asylum.

4. What method do you recommend me to follow? My father is living on the property with friends who have given him a home in lieu of rent. J. B.

1. Such a conveyance would not defeat foreclosure. If such protection was available, then no money lender would be willing to lend on mortgage security.
2. Depends on what you mean by the word.
3. Correct.
4. One possibility is a partition suit. We advise you to have a personal interview with an attorney.

Test Your Horse Sense

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Select the answer which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 24.

1. Which of the following trees has the darkest bark?
   Red Oak Beech White Oak Birch
2. It is advisable to chew gum when riding on which of the following
   Steamship Airplane Bus Railroad Train
3. Should you search for sweet philomel in a
   Girls' Club Candy Shop Flower Garden Drug Store
4. If a man wears an 8½ size shoe, which size of sock should he need?
   9 10 11 12
5. In which state would you expect to find a helium plant?
   Texas Washington California New York
6. You deserve one point for each correct matching of the following states with the number of electoral votes belonging to each. You can solve this problem by using your horse sense, even if you have forgotten the data from the recent Presidential election in the United States.

[a] Missouri	[v] 22 electoral votes.
[b] Utah	[w] 36 electoral votes.
[c] California	[x] 4 electoral votes.
[d] Illinois	[y] 29 electoral votes.
[e] Pennsylvania	[z] 15 electoral votes.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8 superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

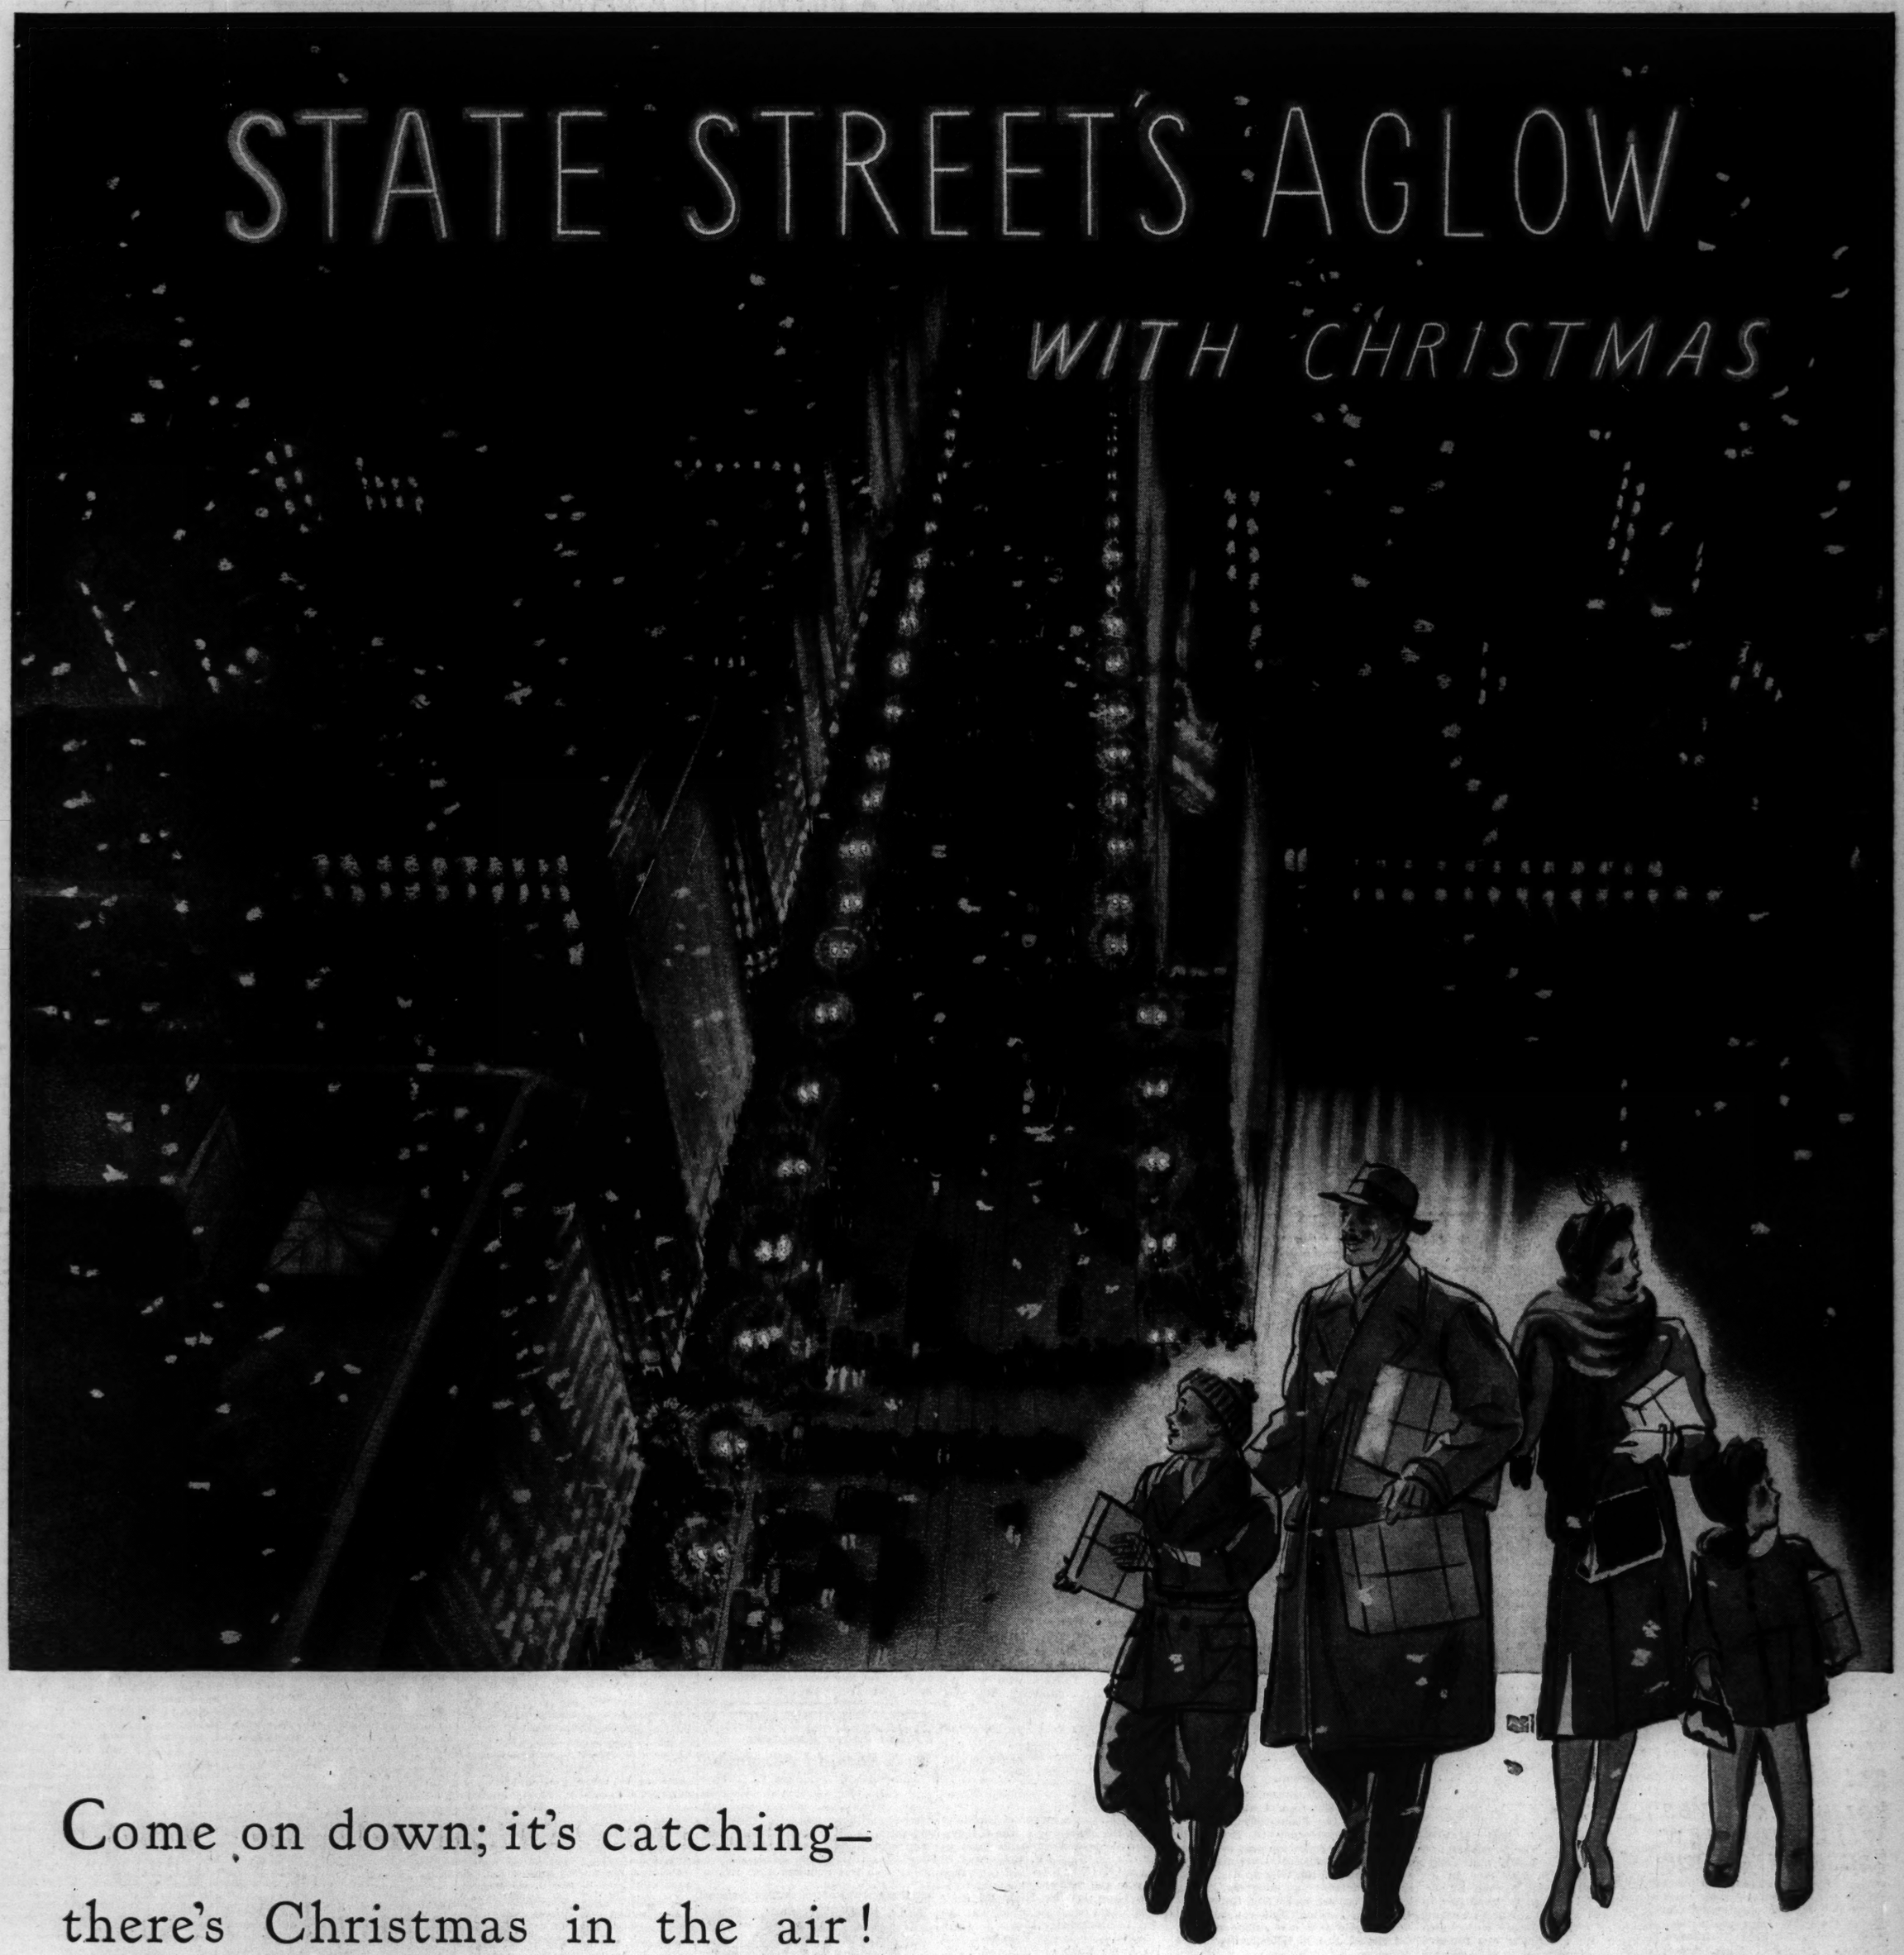
THE POCKET HEROD!

[London Daily Mirror.]



Come on down; it's catching— there's Christmas in the air!

On State Street . . . the whole length and breadth of it . . every store and every shop is bursting with Christmas . . . radiating Christmas gaiety . . . eager to welcome all Chicago to State Street's wonderland of gifts.

On this big-city street with its little-town heart, you'll spark to Christmas when you mingle with the merry crowds . . . Amidst the Christmasy sounds and the glow of lights, you'll be caught up in that all-pervading sense of excitement that means Christmas is almost here.

Come to State Street early and come to State Street often between now and Christmas Day. You'll rekindle your faith in stockings-by-the-fire . . . in the magic of reindeer and Santa . . . in the deep, human friendliness of giving something to somebody else . . . in human nature itself. Come on down; it's catching—there's Christmas in the air.

W-G-N LISTENERS HEAR TALE OF SEA IN 'LONG VOYAGE'

Premiere of Wanger's Movie Is Aired.

A tale of sailormen bound for England on a tramp ship loaded with high explosives was aired last night over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network in the radio première of Walter Wanger's motion picture, "The Long Voyage Home."

John Wayne.

John Wayne, John Qualen, and Arthur Shields, from the movie cast, appeared in the radio version of the story, adapted from several short plays of Eugene O'Neill. The supporting cast included Hugh Studebaker, veteran Chicago stage and radio star, and William Bendix, who is appearing here in William Saroyan's play, "Time of Your Life."

The story is a simple one, dealing with the crew of the steamer Glencairn. As the play opens the ship is anchored in the Caribbean and a boat containing native women comes alongside. They climb aboard, bringing fruit and liquor. Then the scene shifts to New York where the munitions are taken aboard and the Glencairn sets out to run the gauntlet of mines, submarines, air and surface raiders, and the peril of the winter seas.

An Embarrassing Scene.

The voyage is highlighted with much talk of the plans of Ollie [John Wayne] to go home after the trip ends, and there is one embarrassing scene in which the friends of one of the crew, suspecting him of being a spy, break open a box he carries and read letters from his wife, whom he deserted because his love of drink cost him his officer's commission.

During a storm the anchor breaks loose and probably would beat thru the ship's side except that Yank [played by Bendix], at the cost of his life, manages to draw the chain tight once more.

W-G-N players in the supporting cast included Bret Morrison, Don Gallagher, Marvin Mueller, John Walsh, Donna Reade, Fran Carlon, and Janet Logan. The program was produced under direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N.

Wayne Returns to Microphone.

At the close of the play, presented as another feature of the weekly In Chicago Tonight programs, Wayne returned to the microphone to say:

"I know there are lots of things in this brutal and warring world that strain our faith, but we have many blessings, too. Today is Thanksgiving. To all those mariners on the sea; to all those wayfarers on the walks of life who are way from home tonight, and to all the loved ones who sit at home waiting and praying for their early return, may this bring you all closer together and bind more securely those family ties which are so great a part of the American way of living."

POLICE NEGLECT IS BLAMED FOR WIDOW'S DEATH

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 21 [Special].—Mrs. Mary Shueren, 40 years old, a widow, who suffered a stroke and collapsed on a street yesterday, died tonight in a hospital after she had been locked in a police cell for 12 hours without medical attention.

Sergt. Raymond Wenard and Anthony Zuzas, a turnkey, in the station in which Mrs. Shueren was held, were suspended and ordered to appear before the police trial board.

Mrs. Shueren, an active church worker, was sent to the police station in a taxicab by a patrolman when she collapsed. Instead of being put under medical care on arrival there she was placed in a cell.

HOLIDAY CROWDS WILL RIDE NEW BUSES INTO LOOP

Twenty-five new streamlined buses will be put into service early next month to meet the requirements of increased business and the holiday shopping rush, Benjamin Weintraub, president of the Chicago Motor Coach company, announced yesterday.

The new buses will be single deckers. They will contain the latest developments in comfort, safety, and speed and will cost $315,675, according to Weintraub.

He said an increase of 50,425 passengers in the six day period ending Nov. 19 compared with the corresponding period in 1939 showed that Chicago is doing its Christmas shopping early.

Man and Wife Overcome by Coal Gas in Their Home

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sheridan, 1104 North Harding avenue, were in serious condition last night in St. Anne's hospital from coal gas blamed on a defective draft. They were found unconscious in their home by Francis Hickey, Mrs. Sheridan's brother, who came to see why they were late for Thanksgiving dinner in his home at 4203 North avenue.

G. F. MEYNE GETS FORT SHERIDAN BUILDING AWARD

A $1,075,000 contract for construction of new buildings at Fort Sheridan to house National Guard units ordered into active army service has been awarded to the Gerhardt F. Meyne Construction company, 7 South Dearborn street. Announcement of the awarding of the contract was made yesterday after the return of the constructing quartermaster, Lieut. Col. Samuel I. Zeidner, from Washington where he conferred with war department officials.

The Meyne company was one of two companies that submitted identical bids for the project on Nov. 13. At that time the contract was to be for the construction of 170 buildings. Officials in Washington, however, changed their plans reducing the number of structures to be built and after applying unit prices in the original bids to the new requirements arrived at the adjusted figure thru which the Meyne company got the award.

Women World Wide
By Ruth DeYoung Kohler

YESTERDAY the giving of thanks was a public ceremony with the people of the United States formally invited by the President to go to their various houses of worship and express gratitude for their blessings.

Today and thruout the year thanksgiving is a mental attitude. . . accentuated, of course, by the approaching Christmas season.

There are those we know who seem to have everything to be thankful for—and have everything, except a thankful heart. On the other hand, there are those whose reasons for gratitude are deep hidden and yet they are full of appreciation.

Not long ago a letter came to my desk from a woman in California which illustrates this point perfectly. It was prompted by something I had said "on the air." Here is a part of it:

"Sometimes I am inclined to envy the strenuous lives of women in their clubs and societies, working on their projects and keeping their social appointments, but then I know my own so-called liability of having to go about in a wheel chair is not altogether a handicap. I have so many friendly contacts. I come to know charming things about people that others never seem to guess."

Few there are big enough or unselfish enough to overcome a disability such as this and express thankfulness in the face of great misfortune. But only a few persons, comparatively speaking, are called upon to give the word "thanksgiving" such supreme significance.

THE giving of thanks need in no way dull the critical faculties. In fact, a fine sense of appreciation is dependent on any acute discrimination. But in everyday living there are so many small circumstances in which gratitude makes for increased happiness.

As William Lyon Phelps has said: "Thankfulness cannot be hoarded or saved or dealt with economically. If one represses it or limits its circulation, there is none left. The spirit of thanksgiving grows by exercise, and it is literally true that the more we give the more we have left."

Take, for instance, the routine conduct of the clubs and societies to which the woman in California refers. Often there is room for a greater amount of appreciation on the part of officers or chairmen. It would make for better will between the public and these organizations.

I AM thinking of the experience of one of the most highly regarded personnel directors in the midwest. She is a woman who carries heavy responsibility, has little time for outside activity.

A woman's club in a Wisconsin city invited her three times in 18 months to address its membership. Twice she declined because of her heavy schedule. The third time she accepted both on account of personal connections and her desire to give adequate recognition to her profession. The lecture was listed as one in a series covering various businesses and professions.

The appointed day came. It meant a four hour train trip each way, with a change at Milwaukee. On arrival in the town there was no one to meet her. She took a taxi to the place of meeting.

After a business session the president turned the meeting over to the program chairman, who announced, peremptorily: "Mrs. X is here, Mrs. X."

AT the close of the address, well delivered and vital in content [a report relayed by members of the audience] there was not even a "thank you" from the program chairman. To this day, I am told, there has not been a "thank you" and the speech was made without expense to the club.

Such experience may not be the rule. But it should not happen even once. The emphasis with clubs today is on big jobs, vast projects, world ideas. But first it is necessary for clubs and their leaders to show that they have the capacity for appreciation, for discrimination, for doing small jobs in a big way.

THIRTY-FIVE women in one midwestern town are showing that they know the meaning of the word "thankfulness." They're not organized in a club, but once they had the same Sunday school teacher.

This teacher was in a train wreck a year ago. She was permanently injured. With few funds available, it looked as if she might have to spend the rest of her days in a public institution.

But instead the legacy she had willed herself became of great value. For 20 years she had taught Sunday school. It wasn't so much her teaching as her character—her broad sympathies and her fine appreciation of kindnesses big and little—that had impressed itself upon her pupils.

With thankfulness in their hearts these 35 former pupils decided to take over her house to help her in her need. Each day now one takes charge, cooks, sews, cleans. No dowager ever had a better staff. This is the income from an investment in human kindness.

At the Passavant Hospital Opera Benefit

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

The social world was out in force last night at the Civic Opera house for the Passavant hospital benefit of "Salome." At the left are Mrs. Harold Hartog and Philip Poole, at the right Mrs. Wheeler Williams of New York, who with Mr. Williams, is visiting Chicago relatives.

Opera Benefit Makes Another Gala Evening

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

"Salome" is not exactly to be recommended as the perfect after dinner—especially a Thanksgiving feast—opera, but apparently no one of the thirty-five hundred persons in the Civic Opera house last night suffered any bad effects. Many departed, however, after the opera, thus missing the ethereal beauty of "Swan Lake," which is guaranteed to produce a different brand of dreams than turkey and all its fixin's plus "Salome" might do.

It was an evening long to be remembered, however; the magnificence of the setting, the stupendous orchestration; the loveliness of the ballet, and the splendor and size of the audience all combined to make the affair one of the most successful benefits the woman's aid society of the Passavant Memorial hospital ever has given.

Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, president of the society and general chairman of the benefit committee, estimated that the net receipts would amount to between $10,000 and $14,000.

Lovely little Lily Pons, who will sing Monday night, and her husband, Andre Kostelanetz, were with Mr. and Mrs. Kirk, as were Henry Weber and his wife, Marion Claire; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mme. Dusolina Giannini, and Carleton Smith. With the Charles B. Goodspeeds were Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Mann, Nathan Milstein, Mrs. William Vawen, and Dr. and Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strong, who had come from Cleveland to hear Arthur Rodzinski conduct, were the box guests of the Charles H. Swifts, who also had with them the John Alden Carpenters, Mrs. Tiffany Blake, and Deiter Dux, Mrs. Swift's nephew. Mrs. Carpenter's daughters, Mrs. Robert S. Pirie and Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, were in a party composed of Mr. Stevenson, Irving Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Laurance H. Armour, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Glore, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Walker.

One of the most stunning women in the house was Mrs. George T. Senseney, whose auburn hair shone above a picture gown of black velvet trimmed with a bowknot of brilliants. Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, honorary president of the society that gave the benefit, was stunning in black lace trimmed with brilliants. She was escorted by her son, Loring W. Coleman. Young Mrs. Robert F. Carr was beautiful in a mauve tulle with sequin trimming of the same soft color.

"I'm taking a postman's holiday," said Giovanni Martinelli, famous tenor, as he entered the theater. Mrs. John Crerar was hostess to Mr. and Mrs. Theodore A. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hollis, among others. The James Ward Thornes had with them Harold Swift, the Francis Nielsons, the Ernest Wauds, and Mrs. Alden B. Swift.

Cuff Notes.

Herbert Asbury, whose latest book is Gem of the Prairie, is at work at his home at Canada Lake, N. Y., on a new book about the early oil fields (oily erl fields?) . . . When Carleton Smith talks before the Contemporary club this morning on the Low Down on Musical Highbrows about Koussevitsky, Toscanini, Grace Moore, Flagstad, Sibelius, Strauss, Stokowski, and others of his personal knowledge of them, Lily Pons will be in the audience, opera rehearsals permitting. (She sings Gilda in Rigoletto Monday night.) . . . Novotna, who made her Chicago debut this year with the opera and who appears as Cherubino in Figaro and as Octavion in Rosenkavalier, has the prettiest legs in opera. . . . Toscanini has been invited to conduct at the Metropolitan this year and has declined. . . . Since the opening of Fantasia, the new Walt Disney which uses music by Beethoven, Tschaikowsky, Bach, Stravinsky, and other composers, Disney's offices have been flooded with composers wanting to collaborate with him. Stravinsky has been engaged.

• • •

Some music lovers who want to hear Grace Moore in Love of Three Kings Saturday night and who also want to catch Toscanini conducting Verdi's Requiem, his first performance of the season, are taking those small personal radios along to opera to listen between acts. . . . The final jam session conducted by Lim, the Javanese jitterbug, will be held Sunday at the Panther room. Johnny Hodges will play sax, Rex Stewart trumpet, and Barney Bigard clarinet, all from Duke Ellington's band. . . . A well known surgeon [name withheld because of A. M. A.'s code of ethics] has donated an appendectomy or other operation to the British War Relief shop, to be raffled off. If the person who wins doesn't need an operation, it can be used when necessary!

Where the 1940 Notebooks Go.

(In the Morning Mail.)

I am ordering more of your 1940 Notebooks. Would it interest you to know where some of them are going?

One to one of my son's friends in South America. He is a Pan-American pilot. One to David Grayson in Amherst, Mass. Have you read his lovely books, especially "The Country Man's Year"? He will enjoy Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm. One to England, to a member of the R. A. F. God save him and all his kind.

Great Artists Are on Opera Week-End Bills

Three extra reasons for Thanksgiving—the operas "Falstaff," "Manon" and "The Love of Three Kings"—will be offered Chicagoland music lovers tonight and tomorrow afternoon and evening in the Civic Opera house.

An English version of Verdi's "Falstaff" will be heard tonight with John Charles Thomas and Dusolina Giannini and a brilliant supporting cast. It was Thomas, in a speech over radio station W-G-N Wednesday night, who urged that more operas be sung in English so that people might "really understand" them.

He then sang excerpts from "Falstaff" to prove his contention that English is a suitable vehicle for operatic work, and added that every country but the United States insists on having most of its grand opera sung in its own tongue. Henry Weber will conduct tonight.

Helen Jepson and Tito Schipa will appear tomorrow at 2 p. m. in Masenet's "Manon," with Maurice Abravanel conducting. Richard Crooks was to have sung, but was ordered not to do so because of throat trouble. Schipa, whose last appearance here as the Chevalier des Grieux was in 1928, replaces him.

One of the season's most brilliant and unusual treats will be the appearance tomorrow night of Italo Montemezzi as he conducts his own composition, "The Love of Three Kings," for the first time in Chicago.

Grace Moore will sing and act the part of Fiora and Charles Kullman that of Avito for the first time in their respective careers. The two, with Virgilio Lazzari, who sings the part of Archibaldo, have spent countless hours in the last 10 days perfecting their rôles under the watchful eye of Montemezzi.

On less than a day's notice Rose Pauly, dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan opera, stepped into the title rôle of Richard Strauss' "Salome," and turned last night's special Passavant Memorial hospital benefit performance of the Chicago Opera company from a threatened calamity into a genuine artistic triumph. For several weeks Artur Rodzinski, conductor of the Cleveland orchestra, who made his Chicago operatic debut last evening, had been working with Marjorie Lawrence in preparation for the gala performance. But a serious cold attacked Miss Lawrence, and by yesterday morning she was without voice. Miss Pauly, hastily summoned, undertook her last minute assignment with only a single rehearsal of her own portion of the music, and without a full stage rehearsal with the rest of the cast.

Sometimes adversity works wonders, and certainly it did last night. Thanks to Dr. Rodzinski's mastery of the score, to Miss Pauly's exceptional self-command and equally exceptional operatic gifts, and to the high merit of the other principal artists, this revival of "Salome" was absolutely electric. The huge audience responded, after the final curtain, with one of the greatest ovations Chicago has seen and heard in a decade. And nobody whose memory reaches back to an earlier operatic era could deny that the excitement of great opera was recreated in Chicago again last night.

Dr. Rodzinski has conducted many fine performances at Ravinia, but never one to match his "Salome." To call his projection of the score inspirational is to belittle the wonderfully calculated certainty with which he related tempi, nuances, accents, and orchestral colors to the drama which unfolded on the stage.

In physical action "Salome" is at times so static as to amount to little more than a costume cantata. Yet in these visually motionless passages Dr. Rodzinski created irresistible movement with the score. And when, as in Salome's final colloquy with the head of Jokanaan, the stage action took on greater realism, the orchestra reinforced and pointed up the action all the more fully.

The opera orchestra glowed with a tonal beauty it has not attained to for many years, and it was difficult to believe that the Chicago Symphony orchestra, or Dr. Rodzinski's own Cleveland orchestra, had not been secretly spirited into the pit.

If Miss Pauly was unsure of herself, after a considerable lapse since last she sang the rôle, neither she nor Dr. Rodzinski permitted her insecurity to be known. Both histrionically and vocally she built her performance in a single, mounting line of excitement. Her reiterated demands upon Herod for the head of Jokanaan became a crescendo of fanatical lustfulness, and her last demand was enough to make one's flesh creep.

The final scene with the head was powerful in its ghoulish way, but Miss Pauly refrained from empty sensationalism, allowing Salome always to remain a credible, if not a lovable, human being. Even in the dance of the seven veils, always a tribulation to any prima donna, the illusion was not seriously interrupted, for altho Miss Pauly's dance was not worthy of the Ballet Theater, she kept her movement formalized and conventionalized, without forcing herself to seem crudely lascivious.

Rene Maison, as Herod, Karin Branzell, as Herodias, and George Czaplicki, as Jokanaan, all contributed performances of outstanding intellectual grasp and emotional vitality. Mr. Maison's tetrarch, a composite of royal dignity and fevered flesh, presented the most finished and convincing acting he has done here, and the music was both boldly and expressively sung. Miss Branzell's Herodias was regal in every way, and achieved an impressive quality of awestruck terror at her final entrance. Mr. Czaplicki's singing was nothing short of magnificent.

Except for lighting which seemed a little dim, the production was excellently staged, with carefully controlled movement and tableaux of strong pictorial value.

The Ballet Theater's beautiful restoration of "Swan Lake," which completed the bill, will be reviewed after next Thursday's repetition.

New York Cheers Follow Stock and His Band into Philadelphia

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 21 [Special].—As you enter the dun colored building you help yourself to a program from a wicker basket standing by the door. Then you are greeted by a grave and sympathetic usher, and make your way to a seat just in time to collapse with astonishment at the incredible rococo of the interior. Before you is a trim, modern stage with simple planes and bold angles, looking delightfully incongruous amid the tons of gingerbread all about.

Such is the old Academy of Music on Broad street, which Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra invaded tonight for the third concert of their eastern tour and their first in Philadelphia in 21 years.

They appeared under the auspices of the Philadelphia forum, an organization whose interests are inclusive, to say the least, and which is this year sponsoring concerts, lectures, and a demonstration by Jim Londos of the various techniques of wrestling.

Philadelphia received Mr. Stock and the orchestra cordially. Applause rose from the fashionable main floor stalls and echoed back from the gallery swung high against the ceiling. The applause continued at proper intervals as the concert progressed and as the famous acoustical properties of the Academy of Music carried the orchestra's tone in all its splendor to every part of the Auditorium.

The program consisted of Weber's "Euryanthe" overture, Brahms third symphony, the new John Alden Carpenter symphony, and the Strauss rondo, "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks." The Carpenter symphony, dedicated to the Chicago Symphony orchestra and written for its golden jubilee season, received on this occasion its first Philadelphia performance.

The New York critics wrote enthusiastically today of the concert which the Chicago orchestra gave in Carnegie hall last night. Virgil Thompson, newly appointed music critic of the Herald-Tribune, and the enfant terrible of eastern reviewers, had this to say:

"Mr. Stock won his audience last night as he has won audiences for 35 years, by playing them music very beautifully, not by wowing them. The Brahms third symphony was a dream of loveliness and equilibrium. It offered Mr. Stock occasion for one of those rare and blessed readings in which the music seems to play itself. 'Till Eulenspiegel' was merry, although perhaps a trifle discontinuous. Its prankiness was light and gay and nearer by far to the humor of its author than those weighty readings we sometimes hear that make it sound like the ponderous pleasantries of a machine gun."

Olin Downes, music critic of the Times, declared that the performance of the "Euryanthe" overture was one of the most brilliant and glowing in his memory.

Speaking of the orchestra itself, the same reviewer said: "It is an orchestra with a character, a homogeneity, and a sonority all its own."

Parents Reveal Engagement of Jane McIntosh

BY JUDITH CASS.

YESTERDAY at a cocktail party on their farm, Inverness, near Barrington, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. McIntosh of Kenilworth announced the engagement of their daughter, Jane, to John Ellsworth Sheldon, son of Percy E. Sheldon of Boston. Miss McIntosh was graduated from the Roycemore school and from Northwestern university, class of 1937. She spent a year in Europe and for the last two years has been serving as a Gray Lady for the Red Cross.

Miss McIntosh is an enthusiastic horsewoman and skier. Her fiancé was graduated in 1932 from Harvard, where he was a member of the Hasty Pudding, the Iroquois, and the Varsity clubs. He is associated with his father in the wool business in Boston, where he and his bride will reside after their marriage in mid-January. Mr. Sheldon came west to spend Thanksgiving with his fiancée and her family and to be here for the announcement party.

Dinner Dance Tonight for Broome Debutantes.

The pretty and popular Broome debutantes, Betty and Caryl, are to be the especial guests at a dinner-dance at the Casino tonight, given for them by their grandmother and parents, Mrs. John A. Spoor and Mr. and Mrs. Thornhill Broome. Another particular guest will be "Jack" Broome, the buds' brother, who flew up Wednesday from college in Baton Rouge to have Thanksgiving dinner with his family and to be at the party tonight. Young Mr. Broome has his own plane, so coming to Chicago for a week-end is not difficult for him.

Three other out of town guests here for the party are Miss Nancy Strohecker of New York, Miss Bunty Holbrook of Newton, Mass., and Robert Phippen of Salem, Mass. The Broome family lives in Pass Christian, Miss., but spends the summers on Cape Cod. Mr. and Mrs. Broome have invited about 50 of their contemporaries to the dinner-dance; the others of the guests will be debs and post-debs and their beaux.

PANIC.

"You're a cautious man, captain," the visitor said quickly." It's a trait we like to see!"

The captain felt along a row of buttons beside his desk and pressed one. From a loudspeaker concealed behind a panel in the wall a voice announced: "When you hear the signal the time will be exactly ten twenty-three."

"That's a neat device, captain. A hook-up with the time bureau hey? Meridian 7-1212."

"A direct wire," Maclain explained. "I have to hear what I can't see."

"I regret I was late in arriving. I won't detain you any longer," Maclain heard the other rise. "The army and navy intelligence both appreciate your coöperation. Col. Gray suggested that I make myself known to you in case you might want further information after studying our instructions. I'm a lieutenant in the naval reserve, Capt. Maclain, but you may have heard of me in my profession. I was on the stage for years——"

"Col. Gray told me who you are," said Maclain. "You underestimate your own fame. Any one who ever attended a show has heard of Paul Gerente."

* * *

Olive-skinned girls with dark, laughing eyes came into the Italian café. They were accompanied by quick moving, sober faced boys dressed in store clothes of foreign lines. They ate pizza and drank beer or black coffee, eyed Norma Tredwill curiously, and went away.

Babs' galoshes had grown monstrously large. Norma kept glancing at them surreptitiously, wondering how many of the café's customers had noticed them beside her on the floor. Since she had fled from Paul Gerente's apartment more than an hour before, her normal power of reasoning had become dulled. She felt trapped in a situation demanding extreme acuteness with nothing to help her but a non-functioning brain.

Her body was lethargic, too. She had been sitting too long in a straight-backed booth, her spine rigid, her slender feet pressed tightly flat against the floor. Restlessly she shifted her position. Tiny living needles pricked her legs and arms as circulation was resumed once more.

"Madame does not like the pizza?"

A heavy set Italian was bent over the table. She looked at him uncomprehendingly. His long, white apron hid his clothes. At each corner of his wide mouth the whispy end of a horseshoe shaped mustache drooped dolefully. He wiped his eyes slowly with the corner of his apron as the Norma's attitude grieved him.

"Madame does not like the pizza?" he asked again, and pointed to the table in front of her. She understood then that he was referring to a large, untouched tomato pie.

The sight of it made her ill, but she forced herself to smile. "I thought I was hungry when I came in," she said lamely. "I guess I was just cold from the storm."

"Sì," he said. "The storm she mak' you cold. I get some coffee ver' hot. She heat you up again." He shuffled away before Norma could say no.

Two couples a few booths away were laughing softly and chattering in the liquid syllables of their mother tongue. Norma drew back into the seclusion of her own small cubicle and lifted Babs' galoshes from the floor. Tugging with a quick frenzy, she tried to pull one of them on over her thin overshoe. A single try convinced her that it was much too small. When she tried to remove it, it stuck half way.

The piece of expensive fur trimmed footwear seemed malignantly stubborn. By exerting all her strength she finally managed to pull it free. When she looked up, the white aproned proprietor was standing at the end of the table, coffee in hand, gazing unconcernedly at her silk clad knee.

Norma uncrossed her legs and smoothed her skirt down carefully. Apparently her blind flight from Paul's had led her unwittingly to the worst place she could have found. Seeking a quiet spot where she might gather her wits into line, she had blundered into a small pizzeria where her clothes and actions were objects of curiosity to patrons and proprietor. Once let her picture appear in the papers as Paul's ex-wife, a dozen Italians would remember her visit to the local café.

Reflecting back on the events of the past two hours, it was brought crushingly home to her that she was fleeing from something unknown; acting as tho she or Babs had felled Paul Gerente with that horrible blood stained poker. A false calmness took possession of her; the calmness of an actress who has been thru many bad first nights. She nodded her thanks, and handed the proprietor a dollar from her purse, as he set the coffee down.

"Give me a piece of wrapping paper, please," she said. "I bought these galoshes hurriedly and they're too small. Tomorrow I'll take them back to the store."

She wasn't sure if he understood her, altho he nodded solemn agreement. He took the dollar and shuffled stolidly away.

Norma forced herself to drink the hot, bitter draught altho she detested coffee loaded with chicory. It revived her faculties. While waiting for the proprietor's return, questions began to parade themselves dancingly before her. She reviewed them with a sharpened mental astuteness. The answers were vitally important. One by one they capered by her—problems and incidents she should have calmly considered before.

Had Babs killed Paul Gerente?

Another question flashed thru her mind before she could formulate a sensible answer. Was Paul Gerente the man in the cherry colored dressing gown she had seen lying on the floor? Brutally she forced herself to conjure back a picture of the room. The man was about Paul's size and build. Why, in the name of heaven, had she run away like a panicky child? It would have taken but a moment for her to walk closer to the murdered man to see.

Babs might have killed him, if the man was really Paul. Once he was passionately aroused, his methods with women were never tactful. Babs was nervous, high strung, and strong. Frightened and desperate, the girl might easily have seized the nearest weapon and battled for escape from the apartment too successfully. It was a hideous thought, and Norma promptly put it away, yet she knew it was what she had dreaded from the instant she had picked up Babs' galoshes in the hall.

Eagerly she seized upon the stronger terror which had overcome her in Paul's apartment, that weakening premonition that somebody else had been there. Why hadn't she looked into Paul's bedroom, or spoken, particularly when she knew that some one had answered the ring on Paul's bell.

She remembered the voice which called from the second floor, "Do you want Cameron?" Perhaps in her haste and excitement she had pushed the Camerons' button in foyer and never rung Paul's bell at all. Babs might have blundered in onto a murdered Paul Gerente as Norma had done. But how? Norma struggled vainly for an answer. If Paul was murdered, surely a killer would not answer the door. There was another possibility which was sordidly depressing: Babs might have had a key.

A throbbing started over her right eye, rhythmic and painful. She pressed it with her finger tips and told herself silently, "A key might explain how Babs got in, but it doesn't explain who opened that door for me."

It was inconceivable that she had erroneously pressed the Camerons' button. She even knew the location of Paul's—the bottom one in the row.

Or was it? Her remembrance of the lighted vestibule on West 12th street became indistinct and cloudy. Perhaps Cameron's button was the bottom one in the row. Perhaps in ten years the bells had been changed. She found herself battling a dragging urge to go back to the 12th street house and see. It was mad, she knew, but somehow before she faced Babs again she had to have some inkling of the truth. A simpler course presented itself; one which apparently could do no harm and which might work with a little subtlety.

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 21.—Metro is preparing a remake of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," on which John Barrymore exercised his eyebrows many years ago, for Spencer Tracy. . . . Which brings to mind one of the many grand anecdotes in Frank Case's new volume of hotel reminiscences, "Do Not Disturb." Lawton Mackall, according to Case, was a member of New York's board of higher education and also the conductor of a magazine column titled "Potables." Frank once asked him how he managed to combine the higher education and Leon and Eddie's and do it with the same set of brains. "I don't know," replied Mackall. "Maybe I am a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde-de-ho." . . . There is a chance that Clark Gable will be No. 1 on next month's list of the 10 biggest money stars. He has been on the list for 10 years, a remarkable achievement in this land of here today and gone by tea time. . . . Know who the champion eater on the Metro lot is? Hedy Lamarr, of the lovely face and figure. She'll ruin a layer cake in a morning, then have a hearty lunch. . . . Jimmy Stewart plays a bootlegger of the 1920s in "Ziegfeld Girl." Pop Leonard suggested the proper flashy outfit for him would be a white tuxedo, but Stewart nixed it. "I tried one," he said, "and it makes me look like a Good Humor man."

Donald Crisp has been attending warehouse auctions, buying lots of clothing to send to England. His latest purchase was 375 children's sweaters. . . . Errol Flynn will be made the first honorary member of New Mexico's mounted state police. . . . George Brent, who has a license, may do his own flying in "Far Horizon." . . . First of the Warner staff to leave for military training is Victor Kline, a cutter.

Sylvia Sidney will leave New York the end of this week to join Hubby Luther Adler in a Clifford Odets play.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cornelisen are giving a dinner tonight at the Fortnightly club for their sub-deb daughter, Ann, preceding the first Fortnightly of the winter.

"Lowdowns on Musical Highbrows" is the intriguing title of a talk Carleton Smith will give this morning at the Fortnightly before members of the Contemporary club. Miss Frances Whedon will take Mr. Smith, Lily Pons and her husband, André Kostelanetz, on to the symphony concert after the lecture and luncheon. Miss Pons is singing in "Rigoletto" Monday night at the Civic Opera house.

"Latin America" Lecture Topic of Diplomat.

"Latin America: United States' Achilles Heel" is the subject of an address to be given today by Enrique deLozado at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. The meeting will be held at 12:30 o'clock in the Grand ballroom of the Palmer House. Mr. deLozado served in the Bolivian diplomatic service for 14 years, is professor of international law at the University of La Paz in Bolivia, and is visiting professor of political science at Williams college.

Mrs. Quincy Wright, chairman of the department of government and foreign policy of the National League of Women Voters, will preside at the meeting. Donald F. McPherson, president of the council, Mrs. McPherson, Mr. and Mrs. Edison Dick, Mrs. M. Ogden West, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Carton, Mr. and Mrs. McPherson Holt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Holloway, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil I. Crouse, and Mrs. George T. Langhorne also will sit at the speaker's table.

Mr. and Mrs. Barbirolli to Be Guests of Cliff Dwellers.

John Barbirolli, conductor of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra, and Mrs. Barbirolli will be special guests at the tea at the Cliff Dwellers after the symphony concert today. Among the hostesses are Mrs. Charles H. Hamill, Mrs. Albert A. Sprague, Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Clyde M. Carr, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mrs. John Paul Welling, Mrs. Thomas I. Underwood, and Mrs. Chalkley J. Hambleton.

The College club also will serve tea after the concert this afternoon.

An exhibition of oil and water color paintings by Edward H. Bennett will be opened today at the Quest Art galleries. Proceeds from the sale of these paintings will go to the Allied War relief fund. Tea will be served from 4 to 6 o'clock. Among those who will be hostesses at the tea are Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Daniel Catton Rich, Miss Alice Roullier, Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. Inez Stark, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, Mrs. Louis Bernays, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. John Andrews King, Mrs. Byron S. Harvey, and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham. The exhibit will hang thru Dec. 14.

Exhibit of Indian Art Opens This Afternoon.

Some who are interested in Indian art will go north after the concert this afternoon to Mrs. Howard Kornblith's apartment at 2300 Lincoln Park West, where an exhibit of Pop Chalee's work is being opened with a tea. Mrs. Kornblith met the artist and became interested in her last summer in Santa Fe and invited her to come to Chicago for a week to exhibit her paintings.

Altho Nov. 21 was the official date of Thanksgiving, and the one which was observed in Illinois, many eastern states are clinging to the traditional "last Thursday."

Since Bryn Mawr granted only a one-day respite from classes, many Chicago debutantes who are students there, ate their Thanksgiving dinners with friends in the east, rather than at home. Miss Nathalie Bell, Miss Alice Clay Judson, Miss Elizabeth Alexander, Miss Marjorie Alexander, and Miss Eunice Hale were among those affected by the Bryn Mawr ruling.

Miss Margaret Stuart, who has the advantage over the eastern students in that she goes to school practically in her own back yard—at the University of Chicago—chose to go east for the Yale-Harvard game on Saturday rather than to stay here for turkey dinner with her family.

Altho the University of Wisconsin grants only one free day Miss Patty Chancellor, the Justus L. Chancellors' daughter, is at home for the whole week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lyon of Winnetka went east to spend Thanksgiving with their daughter, Kay, who is a student at Dobbs Ferry. Miss Mary Lyon will be going east next week to be a bridesmaid on Nov. 30 in the wedding of Miss Rhoda Belnap of Boston, formerly of Lake Forest.

Miss Frances T. Gordon who is studying at Vassar college, will be among the Chicagoans attending the Yale-Harvard game tomorrow. Miss Gordon is the daughter of the Harold J. Gordons of Madison Park.

Miss Priscilla Armstrong, daughter of the Julian Armstrongs of Lake Bluff, is another Chicagoan who put the Yale-Harvard game in New Haven before Thanksgiving dinner at home.

Boys appreciate masculine looking lamps in their rooms and it's not always easy to find such items. Therefore, we'd like to tell you about a number of table lamps made especially with men in mind. They all have simple, white parchment shades. One has a print of a horse's head on it and the base of this lamp is made up of a leather and silver metal copy of a stirrup mounted on a block of dark wood. Another lamp has a brass ship's bell as base, while a third has a ship's wheel, and a fourth a brass anchor and capstan. For the hunter there's a lamp with little replicas of guns, in brass, ornamenting the base. All these lamps are inexpensive.

New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra, John Barbirolli, conductor, playing in Orchestra hall, Nov. 21. The program:

Chaconne ..... Purcell
[Transcribed by John Barbirolli]
[First performance in Chicago]
Prelude to "Irmelin" ..... Delius
[First performance in Chicago]
Orchestral Fragments, Second Series, from "Daphnis and Chloe" ..... Ravel
Symphony No. 7, C Major ..... Schubert

Last night an audience filling every seat in Orchestra hall turned out to greet the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra and its conductor, who were playing exchange concerts with the Chicago Symphony in honor of the latter's golden jubilee season. That this gracious gesture was appreciated was obvious from the warm and cordial reception that greeted Mr. Barbirolli when he first came upon the stage. Enthusiastic applause followed the playing of each number, and a virtuoso performance of the Ravel elicited a demonstration from the listeners.

On the whole, however, the concert was a disappointment. The orchestra has a less ingratiating sound than Orchestra hall devotees are used to. While individual sections of the ensemble—notably the winds and brasses—contain expert players, the full orchestra is frequently muddy in texture, and the outlines of the music are blurred. The upper strings are often over-balanced by the rest of the ensemble and they develop a stridency in trying to overcome this factor.

The best playing of the evening was done in the first two sections of the Ravel. Altho the diaphanous quality of the score was not always in evidence, the orchestra here displayed a greater and more sensitive tonal variety than elsewhere, and Mr. Barbirolli gave the music direction and flow. The concluding portion of the suite was given an altogether orgiastic performance.

The conductor's estimable predisposition to the works of Schubert was manifest in his programming of that composer's great C major symphony. In a sincere performance Mr. Barbirolli often found admirable tempi for the various movements. There was considerable drive in his reading, but many of the long transition passages in the symphony were taken at a headlong pace and at full blast, so that the effect was one of monotony and great length.

Only too often the climaxes would be reached too soon, spoiling the formidable structure of this work. As elsewhere more fastidious playing from the orchestra was in order.

Chicago was fortunate in the two premières on the program. The Chaconne is a noble and harmonically rich work, and Mr. Barbirolli's tasteful transcription gives it color and clarity. Delius' brief operatic prelude is an early composition, concerned almost completely with one theme, harmonized and orchestrated with an admirable late nineteenth century romantic feeling.

This afternoon the orchestra will offer a different program in Orchestra hall, including a Handel Concerto Grosso, the first Chicago performance of Debussy's "Le Sommeil de Lear," Tschaikowsky's "Romeo and Juliet," and Brahms' Second Symphony.

Self-Sacrifice Is Noble, but Often Foolish

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Al tells of being in love with a girl who has been carrying on an affair with a married man. For five years Al has been trying to dissuade the young woman from the attachment. The girl tells Al she loves him in one way but that she loves the married man in another.

Al persuaded the girl finally to give the man up. For six months he knew what it was, he tells us, to have her undivided attention and her protestations of love for him only. He was living in a fool's paradise, he found out when a friend informed him that the pair, the girl and her married man, were seen around town together at cocktail bars and other places, and people were laughing at him.

Al knows the wife of the married man. He knows their three children. He says that, for their sake, he'd still marry the girl if she'd have him, to get her out of their lives, for the wife, he protests, is a wonderful woman.

It's noble, Al, to want to make the sacrifice to preserve that home intact, but would the sacrifice be worth while? If the man is "suspect," he'd probably "date" another girl after you married the current one. You might have a life work mapped out for you. But that isn't the point, really. You don't want to make a mess of your own life, do you? Knowing what you know about this girl with whom you claim to be in love, wouldn't there be times in marriage to her when you'd find her past extremely hard to take? There'd always be that something between you. You couldn't have the faith in her, the confidence that marriage requires, knowing what you know.

Field Museum to Present 'Garden Travelogue' Film

A natural color motion picture lecture titled "Springtime in the South" will be presented tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at the Field Museum of Natural History by Dr. John B. May, former Massachusetts director of ornithology and author of numerous books on birds. Dr. May describes his lecture as "a travelogue for garden enthusiasts and bird lovers." Adults only will be admitted because of restricted seating accommodations. No tickets are required.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

In the recent self-rating examination, whenever the possibility of a penalty double entered the picture, the bridge public split into warring factions. It is superobvious that players do not see eye to eye in this department. Take question 11, for example:

Neither side vulnerable, the bidding proceeds:

West	North	East	South
1 diamond	1 heart	Pass	3 hearts
Pass	3 no trump	4 diamonds	?

You are South, and hold:

♠ A J 9 6 ♥ 10 6 5 2 ♦ 3 ♣ K J 9 4

What call do you make?

In framing this question, I was blissfully unaware that South would have to make a three-way decision. It boiled down, I thought, to the simple problem of passing, to let North make the final decision, or bidding four hearts.

To my great surprise, several thousand of the answers sent me for rating maintained that South should not merely give North the opportunity to double; that South himself should double "because North could take it out, if he chose." This seems to me a remarkable case of mistaken identity. Why should South, holding a singleton diamond, viz., a dislike of that suit, presume or anticipate that North probably will double and take that action for him. This sort of bidding philosophy would knock out the entire principle of forcing passes which, I assure readers, is a very sound principle indeed.

North may have the sort of hand that is "close" between a four heart bid and a double of four diamonds. If you let him make his own decision it is likely to be the correct one; if you double, you are taking control of a situation in which you should be only an interested bystander.

Today's Hand

It is a lamentable fact that many bad bids are rewarded rather than punished. But these are isolated cases. In the long run, South [in the following deal] will not do well with his brand of bidding.

North, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

Rubber bridge.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	3 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's jump rebid slashed the requirements by about one and one-half honor tricks. Even with a six card suit headed by A-Q-10, a player should have 4-4½ honor tricks for this semi-forcing rebid. The fact that North had passed originally made South's "stretch" all the more questionable.

Perhaps North should not have leaped all the way to a slam, even after South's misleading rebid, but there was some logic in his feeling that, if South was bidding correctly, there must be a reasonably good play for 12 tricks.

West opened the heart king. Declarer ruffed and met his first bit of excellent luck when he was able to draw the outstanding trumps in two rounds. The diamond ace then was cashed, and a low club was led to the queen. Now, on the play of the king and queen of diamonds, poor East had to surrender his jack, and the diamond ten disposed of dummy's next-to-last club. After that, declarer had only to concede a club trick to the ace. He could ruff his own third club in dummy.

Obviously, if the trumps had broken 3-1 [the more likely break] or if the diamond jack had been guarded by one more card, the optimistic slam contract would have met defeat.

Tomorrow's Hand

Numerology By Evelyn Holmes

Nov. 22, 1940.

Universal Day—Organize and stabilize today. Don't be indecisive.

Birthdays—This birthdate, Nov. 22, packs plenty of punch, and if it is your birthday you ought not to be the type that sits around the fireside and does nothing, for this combination of numbers has power. It was the birthday of Wiley Post, around-the-world flier who died in a crash with Will Rogers, and it also was the birthday of George Eliot. It is the birthday of John Garner and José Iturbi. Those with this birthday have a few words to say or write in the immediate future, or in some way to be more active than this past year.

Smart new fashion-arrivals specially priced to fill gaps in holiday wardrobes. We've everything from pastel plaids and luxuriously furred coats to party glamour gowns . . . but hurry! Some are special for two days only!

MONOGRAMMED

IF you have your monogramming done now, avoiding the gift rush—the monogramming itself will be done leisurely, and consequently better. And you're assured early delivery.

SHIRTS, WHITE ON WHITE WITH 3-LETTER MONOGRAM

3 for $6.50

Associated with fine brandy and the aroma of a choice Havana is the masculine elegance of a white on white shirting. Despite the richness of a picked broadcloth you'll find our gift price moderate, and including a 3-letter monogram.

MUFFLERS, OF "TRU-HU" SILK IN SIX COLORS

$5

Put a hefty, luxurious muffler around a man's neck, and he'll glory in it. One of these of Tru-hu silk, solid colors for the day, immaculate white for exacting night life requirements. Three-letter monogram in contrasting colors. Also in wool. White, maroon, navy, grey, yellow, brown.

GOLF BALLS, WITH HIS NAME PRINTED ON

12 for $5

On your preferred list there's bound to be a golf addict, and there's no better way to bring a gleam to his eye than with these . . . tough cover, liquid center, built for distance golf balls with his name or initials on the cover. Block or script lettering.

Monogrammed Gifts, First Floor.

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Fenger's high scoring football team, which meets Lindblom for the Public School league championship in Soldiers' field tomorrow afternoon, observed Thanksgiving day by marching thru the rain and mud to whip a neighborhood rival, Pullman Tech, 34 to 13, yesterday morning. It was Fenger's eleventh consecutive victory of the season and its 35th game without defeat.

Fenger's five touchdowns boosted the champions' total for the season to 464. The team now appears headed for the state's scoring record of 512 established by Bushnell High school in 1928. If the squad triumphs over Lindblom tomorrow it will have one more game on its schedule—meeting the Catholic league champion, De Paul or Leo, in Mayor Kelly's All-City game in Soldiers' field on Nov. 30.

Regulars Get Workout.

Regular members of the squad did not spend the game on the bench. Coach Chuck Palmer sent the usual starters against Pullman Tech at the opening of the contest. Henry Stevenson, fleet quarter back, took individual scoring honors, accounting for four of the five touchdowns. James Sullivan, Stevenson's understudy, contributed the other score just before the half which ended, 21 to 7.

The game also marked the return of John Vilet, regular 187 pound end, who was on the sidelines for two weeks because of injuries suffered in an automobile accident. Another end, Ed Vanderploeg, who also has been on the injured list, participated in the game.

Equals Mount Carmel Feat.

Altho defeated, Pullman Tech gained solace in the fact that it was the only team since Mount Carmel accomplished the feat last year to score two touchdowns on the champions. The first was scored by Left Half Back Kurnik in the second period and the second by Right Half Back Kippen in the final quarter. Three other teams—Crane Tech, Bowen, and Parker—each scored a touchdown in their games with Fenger this season.

Coach E. Lansford Moore of Lindblom was among the spectators. Moore visited Pullman Tech field after directing his central division champions thru a two hour workout on the Lindblom field. It was the fourth time this season Moore has watched Fenger and Lindblom's supporters are confident the veteran coach plans several surprises for the game tomorrow afternoon.

De Paul Takes Workout.

De Paul, north section champion, which opposes Leo in Soldiers field Sunday for the Catholic league championship, also went thru a long workout in the lake front arena. Coach Wally McGovern reported all regulars in condition with the exception of Joe Hoban, 150 pound quarter back.

AS GOATS GO, SO DOES ARMY—AND GOATS LOSE, 7-0

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 21 (AP).—As tho the assignment wasn't already tough enough, Army's chances against Navy in their anuual game at Philadelphia a week from Saturday suffered the additional impediment of a 7 to 0 victory by the Engineers over the Goats in their intramural game today. According to legend, this indicates a Navy triumph in the grand finale.

The Engineers and Goats are teams selected from the second [junior] class at the military academy,

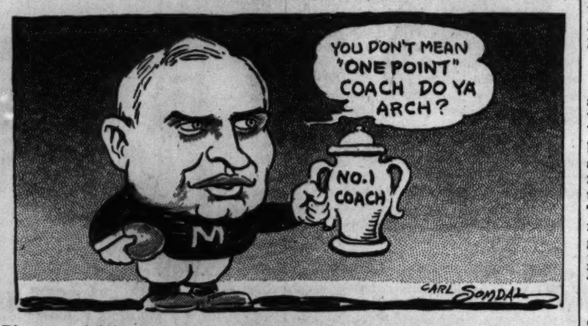
HARRY SMITH and Bill Fisk, tackle and end, respectively, with the Detroit Lions, who are winding up their first year in professional football, agree that their Southern California eleven of Jan. 1, 1940, would have held its own with any team in the National league. . . . Billy Webb, head man of the White Sox farm system, estimates he covered 50,000 miles by train and auto while making inspections of various minor league affiliates. . . . Mike Jacobs plans to donate several used boxing rings to army training centers. . . . The present Navy mascot, a handsome and altogether sweet smelling goat, is the object of a burning controversy. . . . His name is Bill VIII., but the numerical suffix is challenged by persons who say they have been acquainted with at least a dozen Navy mascots. . . . The rebuttal in this goaty war is that several of the beasts were named Pat or Mike or Ludwig, or at least not Bill. . . . Whizzer White will return to Yale next semester to continue his law studies. . . . The Washington Redskins' busy ticket office does not have bars to separate the public from the till, but the setup is a spurious compliment to visitors. . . . If any guy tried to reach over and grab a handful of bills, he would find himself stabbed in the arm with an arrow. . . . More than 12,000 fans will accompany the Redskins to New York for Sunday's game with the Giants. . . . Eddie Anderson, whose Iowa team evened up for early season's reverses by whipping Notre Dame for the second year in a row, will resume work in Iowa's medical school next week. . . . Ernie Caddel, one of the best all around backs the National Football league has had, is district representative in Oakland, Cal., for a Detroit motor firm. . . .

And how about a hand for Harry Stuhldreher and his 1940 Badgers, who have turned what threatened to be a disastrous season into a brilliant finish? . . . George Benson, who has helped win basketball, football, and baseball games for Northwestern, insists the top thrill of his career was winning a basket of fruit at a movie theater drawing a few years ago. . . . And whatever became of Primo Carnera? . . . Dutch Bergman, football coach at Catholic university, helps broadcast the Redskins' home games. . . . For consistency of performance we nominate Bernie



Bierman of Minnesota as America's No. 1 football coach. . . . He never has had a weak team at Minneapolis, and no other university arranges schedules tougher than Minnesota's. . . . Wyoming university has beaten Denver university only twice since their gridiron series started in 1898. . . .

OUR BEARS NEED A TRIUMPH, AND THEY REALIZE IT

Rams to Face Desperate Team Sunday.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

(Picture on page 21.)

Three riding classes cantered by oblivious to everything except the fashionable cut of their habits. A group of youngsters went diligently about the business of deciding the championship of Armitage and Clark streets with nothing more than an envious glance at the swell uniforms those kids on the other field were wearing.

It was Thanksgiving morning in Lincoln park and those kids in the swell uniforms were the Chicago Bears, a football team of some renown. Rain the night before had drenched Wrigley field and they had come down to North avenue at the Outer Drive to spare the turf. There they learned how a couple of lickings in a row can detract from a team's prestige.

Who Wants Spectators?

But the Bears appreciated the snub. They were in no mood for visitors. They had just come from Wrigley field, where the clubhouse bulletin board and even the walls are filled with clippings and anonymous notes, all little mementoes of their trip to Washington last week. The clippings are columns that rambled on paragraph after paragraph, and not a few are accompanied by diagramed illustrations. But the theme of each is the same:

"The Bears? Phooey!"

The prize exhibit is a letter addressed to "The World's Greatest Crybabies." It bears a Washington postmark and is dated Monday. Then there is a copy of the official statistics for the Washington game, carrying such embarrassing items as "Yards gained, Famiglietti, one in five attempts."

Watch Out Rams!

It is all pretty ominous and bodes ill for Cleveland, which will call at Wrigley field Sunday as well as for the Cardinals, who follow the Rams into the north side arena, and nothing short of annihilation for the Redskins, whom the Bears expect to meet again in the championship game on Dec. 8.

By now it should be obvious, as it was to this reporter before the noontime shower cut short the Lincoln park drill yesterday, that the Bears are mad and ready to play the inspired football Coach George Halas has been striving for ever since the first Green Bay game on Sept. 22. The Bears reached their peak emotionally that afternoon and came away with a 41 to 10 triumph, even tho they were far from the finished football team that lost to Detroit and the Redskins.

Welcome Back Osmanski.

Granting that mental attitude is as important to football as are the goal posts, the one thing that may bring the Bears back to their winning ways most quickly is the return to form of Bill Osmanski. The former Holy Cross All-American and dental student played a good part of the Washington game, but at no time did he measure up to the Osmanski who struck fear into the hearts of opponents last year. The Washington game marked his first appearance in the lineup since Detroit was in Wrigley field on Oct. 7.

Intervening weeks have eliminated all evidence of the injuries which kept Osmanski on the bench and the Washington game appears to have been just the workout he needed to regain his drive and explosive speed.

Past Records Mean Nothing When N. U. Plays Notre Dame

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Collegiate football probably cannot present a series that has been more one sided than the Notre Dame-Northwestern rivalry up for decision at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow in Dyche stadium. Yet this series, despite only two Wildcat victories in 19 games [two others were tied] ranks with any football rivalry for intensely rugged, closely fought contests.

This record, which started in 1889 and has been continuous since 1929, is the magnet that will attract a capacity throng of 48,000 to Dyche stadium. All tickets have been sold for more than a month, an expression of public support that wasn't equaled until a few days before Minnesota, Big Nine champion, played in the same stadium three weeks ago.

Northwestern Is Due.

Too many times Northwestern's defense has been its principal weapon. Too many times the Wildcats have fought furiously to stem attacks that eventually broke thru for the touchdown, or field goal, which brought one more victory to the Irish. Northwestern's surprising 14 to 7 victory in 1935, the first year under Lynn Waldorf, is its sole triumph in the modern era of football. Northwestern's other victory was scored in the 1901 game, 2 to 0.

Notre Dame and Northwestern resumed relations in 1920, in the game which marked the last appearance of the famed George Gipp, after the rivalry had lapsed for 17 years. Notre Dame won that afternoon, 33 to 7.

They Always Meet the Best.

It has been Northwestern's misfortune, seemingly, to meet Notre Dame's greatest elevens. Thus, it was that four years after this 1920 game the Wildcats next met the famous Notre Dame team to be known thereafter in gridiron history as the four horsemen. Despite Moon Baker's two early dropkicks, Notre Dame's backs — Harry Stuhldreher, Jimmy Crowley, Elmer Layden, and Don Miller—behind the seven mules of the line, scored two touchdowns in Soldiers' field to win, 13 to 6.

The following year, under the leadership of Capt. Tim Lowry, a center, who received THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE silver football that season as the most valuable player to his team in the Western conference, Northwestern made a great bid for victory. On old Cartier field, Northwestern outplayed the Irish to lead, 10 to 0, at the half. But Notre Dame received the kickoff to resume play and drove to a touchdown. The Wildcats then chose to kick off again. Once more an inspired Notre Dame team marched to the goal and a 13 to 10 victory.

Carideo Sparks the Irish.

Notre Dame won the 1926 game, 6 to 0, and after a lapse of three years, the series was resumed. Notre Dame's undefeated, national championship team, with Jack Elder at left half back, whipped the Wildcats, 26 to 6. It was in this game on the frozen gridiron in Dyche stadium that Tim Monahan, Irish center, suffered a broken leg. This also was the game which the late Knute Rockne missed because of illness.

In 1930 an undefeated Northwestern team almost stopped Notre Dame's march to a second national title. In the last five minutes, however, after Frank Carideo's excellent punting had kept the Wildcats bottled up, the Irish scored twice and won, 14 to 0. Northwestern's splendid 1931 team, which was undefeated until the post-season charity schedule, when it lost to Purdue, 7 to 0, held the Irish to a scoreless tie. Then the pendulum of rivalry swung to Notre Dame for three consecutive years.

Look for Battle.

Tomorrow's game has no bearing on national or sectional titles. Northwestern lost its chance for the Big Nine championship by a one point licking from Minnesota and a touchdown defeat by Michigan. Iowa ruined Notre Dame's march last Saturday and duplicated its 1939 victory, which also stopped the Irish after they had won six games.

These failures only serve to intensify the rivalry. Notre Dame should rebound from defeat as it did a year ago, and Northwestern will have had a successful year if Notre Dame is whipped. Each offers a cast of skillful men, matching Capt. Milt Piepul, Notre Dame's peerless full back, against Northwestern's Don Clawson, and the Irish left half, Bob Saggau, against the talented Ollie Hahnenstein. Hahnenstein has averaged 5 9-10 yards for his 55 rushing plays from scrimmage and he has completed nine passes in thirteen attempts for a gain of 203 yards.

Resume Drills Today.

Piepul's average gain is just short of five yards. In three years Piepul has carried the ball 161 times for a gain of 755 yards. He kicks off for the Irish and this season has kicked eight points after touchdown in eleven attempts.

Northwestern's squad practiced yesterday morning at 10:30 and then was excused until 3 o'clock this afternoon. Players who live in Chicago and suburban territory went home for their Thanksgiving dinners. Other members of the squad dined together in Scott hall.

LELLO AIMS TO STOP JENKINS FOR 2D TIME TONIGHT

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—Lew Jenkins of Sweetwater, Tex., and Pete Lello of Chicago will meet for the world's lightweight championship [New York variety] tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden.

Jenkins, making the first defense of that portion of the title he won by knocking out Lou Ambers last winter, has been waiting for this chance at the Chicago puncher for a year and a half. Lello has been after Jenkins ever since he won the crown, just to prove that when he knocked out the Sweetwater lightweight in seven rounds in March, 1939, he didn't do it with mirrors.

Expect 12,000 to 15,000.

As a result, each fighter is betting his own money that he'll flatten the other tomorrow long before the 15 round route is completed. Promoter Mike Jacobs figures some 12,000 to 15,000 customers will be willing to chip in between $30,000 and $35,000 to see it happen.

At the moment Jenkins is a 5 to 8 favorite to reverse the affair with Lello—or, as his manager, Hymie Caplin, puts it, "Lew is gonna reverse the reverse." Besides the grudge angle, there's also a matter of pride between the rival managers. Caplin insists that since he has handled Jenkins, the ex-army horseshoer is so far improved he looks like "two other guys."

Who's Fighting, Anyway?

"Yeah," points out Izzy Kline, "but he isn't improved as much as I've improved Pete since the last time he and Jenkins fought. What's more, I've had seven world champions, including Max Baer and Barney Ross [whom he trained] and you've had only five."

U. S. G. A. EXEMPTS EX-CHAMPS FROM TRIALS FOR OPEN

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—The United States Golf association today announced a change in the program of its national open tournament. Beginning with next year's tournament at the Colonial club, Fort Worth, Tex., June 5 to 7, former champions will be exempt from sectional qualifying rounds and will be automatically eligible for the tourney proper upon filing their entries.

Previously exemptions had taken in only the 30 low scorers and ties in the previous year's tournament and the home club pro. Starting in 1942, in order to leave a sufficient number of places for the sectional qualifiers, this group will be cut to the 25 low scorers and ties.

At the same time the U. S. G. A. announced the 1941 national amateur, to be held at the Omaha [Neb.] Field club, will be played Aug. 25 to 30. Entries will close Aug. 1, and sectional qualifying rounds will be played Aug. 14. Entries for the open will close May 13, with the sectional eliminations May 26.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

A holiday crowd of 15,487 went to the Stadium last night in the hope of seeing the Blackhawks accomplish their second victory of the season over the great, tho recently perplexed, Boston Bruins. But, alas, the customers stayed to see the Bruins achieve their first victory in six games played this autumn. The score: Boston, 2; Chicago, 0.

The first score, the one that really hurt, was made in 7 minutes and 32 seconds of the second period by Herbie Cain on assists by Art Jackson and Des Smith.

The other counter was made by Mel Hill on assists by Jack Crawford and Bill Bowley in the closing minutes of the game when Hill and his assistants broke loose while the Hawks were all forward, pressing for the tying goal.

Hawks Play Hard.

The Hawks played hard enough to win, and this included the work of the two lads who played their first major league engagement—Defenseman Dave MacKay and Center Max Bentley. Trouble was Goalie Frank Brimsek, whom the Hawks shoved around for six goals in Boston on Nov. 12, had one of his good nights, and when that happens it's always just too bad for the stick swishers.

The Hawks played the Bruins to a scoreless standoff in the first period, tho they had to fight hard for equality while Max Bentley was serving his first major league penalty for tripping Cowley. The pressure on this occasion was eased, however, when Mush March and George Allen pulled the puck out of the Bruin power maneuvers and went down the ice for a hard shot by Allen.

Cain's High One Scores.

Things seemed to be going along handsomely for the Hawks early in the second period when Cain, Jackson and Smith bunched up along the Boston left boards and started down the ice. After crossing the Hawk blue line the trio spread out and in the course of zigzag passing, Cain caught the rubber with a backhand swipe from in front of the cage and batted home a high one.

Later in the period the Hawks forced the issue, especially while Smith was in the penalty box for holding Max Bentley. They kept goalie Brimsek very busy, but when the second period was over, the Bruins were leading, 1 to 0.

A Desperation Affair.

The second Boston score was one of those desperation affairs that probably wouldn't have happened if the Hawks had been in a tie or better. The Hawks had all available hands forward battling for a tie when Crawford shoved the puck to Cowley in the Bruin defense zone. Cowley carried it a mile a minute along his left boards until he crossed the Hawk blue line. He then passed to Hill who was racing down the middle of the rink. Hill picked up the rubber with no loss of momentum and bore down on top of Goalie Paul Goodman, who had little time and only one quick guess for the save, a guess which didn't place him in front of Hill's productive shot.

After the game Manager Paul Thompson went to Presbyterian hospital where he will undergo an operation today. Johnny Gottslieg will manage the Hawks in their next three or four games, including the meeting with the Toronto Maple Leafs in Toronto tomorrow night and here Sunday night.

Kenosha Cardinals Rout Gunners, 46-0

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 21 [Special].—The Kenosha Cardinals scored their seventh successive victory today, routing the undefeated Chicago Gunners, 46 to 0. The Gunners lost the services of Bill Giraitis, end, and former Millikin star, who suffered a broken leg early in the game. Giraitis, whose home is at 3029 South Union avenue, Chicago, was taken to the Kenosha hospital. Harry Leysenaar scored two touchdowns for the Cards, who piled up 28 points in the third quarter.

SUBURBAN BOUTS IN C.Y.O. TOURNEY START TONIGHT

Nearly 100 Enter Joliet Preliminaries.

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Preliminary bouts between boxers in the suburban centers will open tonight in Catholic High school gymnasium in Joliet in the 10th annual Catholic Youth organization amateur boxing tournament. The Rev. Timothy Moore, director of C. Y. O. activities in Joliet, yesterday said nearly 100 applications have been received, the largest ever to enter the suburban eliminations.

The boys will report at Catholic High gym this afternoon at 4 o'clock to undergo medical examinations by Dr. James Russell and his staff from C. Y. O. center. About 40 of these candidates will compete in 20 contests this evening. Survivors and others who draw byes will return for action in the quarter-final round tomorrow.

Meet Chicago Champions.

The eight color bearers in each of the open, novice, and beginners classes remaining in the meet after tomorrow's activities will qualify for the semi-finals in C. Y. O. center Monday and Tuesday. There they will encounter 66 Chicago representatives—22 each from the north and west, and 24 from the south side. This select 66 won their spurs in city quarter-final competition on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

John C. Karas, head man of the meet during the hospitalization of Director Thomas O'Connell, will leave at 2 p. m. to take charge of the festivities in Joliet this afternoon. He will be accompanied by the Rev. Walter Chelminski, C. Y. O. chaplain, and Coach Paddy Kane.

Twenty-one from Kankakee.

Twenty-one of the suburban entrants will come from Kankakee. There are several light heavyweights in this group, but they will have to be extra good if they expect to qualify for the semi-finals. It may interest them to know that Bim June, sturdy youngster representing Sacred Heart [Joliet] is back for an open 175 pound title. June won the 1939 novice C. Y. O. light heavyweight championship by scoring a one round technical knockout over Dick Anderson of St. Alphonsus [Chicago].

The 32 open and novice division winners next week will meet in the finals in the Coliseum Dec. 4. Boxers in the beginners bracket will be crowned when the open and novice finalists are determined Tuesday.

Mr. Mamakos Starts Drills for Aron Bout

Steve Mamakos opened training yesterday in Trafton's gymnasium for a 10 round return bout with Milt Aron in the Coliseum Monday. The rugged Mamakos, who possesses a record of 33 victories in 40 appearances during a three year campaign, scored a 10 round draw decision in a meeting with his Chicago rival last Sept. 9.

Steve, a member of the 121st Engineers, National Guard unit in the District of Columbia, is confident of beating Aron this time. If he does it will spoil a contemplated overweight match between Aron and Champion Fritzie Zivic in Chicago Stadium next month.

Eddie Blunt, New York heavyweight, and Pat Foley, Boston lightweight, arrived yesterday for two supporting matches of 10 rounds on the Aron-Mamakos card. Blunt is paired with Lem Franklin, and Foley with Billy Marquart. Foley was accompanied by Johnny Buckley, his manager. Seal Harris, retired heavyweight fighter, has taken charge of Blunt's training. Jimmy Tygh, Philadelphia 135 pounder, and Nick Castiglione are principals in a fourth 10 round event.

Frankie Kidd, Downers Grove welterweight, and his brother, Charley, a junior welterweight, will appear in two contests topping the amateur show tonight in Madison Athletic club, 4711 Madison street. . . . The first of a series of amateur fights will be presented this evening in Chicago Towers club, 505 North Michigan avenue.

STOCKHOLDERS REPORTED READY TO OUST NUGENT

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 21 (AP).—The Philadelphia Record, in a copyright story, said tonight a group of minority stockholders of the Philadelphia National League Baseball club was mapping a drive to oust Gerry Nugent, bring in new capital, get new management and players, and put the team back among the contenders. A stockholders' meeting is scheduled for Tuesday.

Leading the dissenters, the Record says, is William H. Harman, vice president of the Baldwin Locomotive works. Among them they control 104 of the 5,000 club's shares. Nugent and his wife, who is vice president and treasurer, control a majority.

Harman was quoted as saying that the club's stockholders haven't received a dime on their investment for years.

"I can think of wealthy men here who might buy control, but the Nugents are the stumbling block," he said. "I can't get accurate information—but I understand Gerry gets $15,000 a year, his wife $5,000, and Secretary Robert F. Irwin Jr., $7,500. We want a showdown, and we'll get it."

POSTPONE TWO GAMES IN PEORIA BECAUSE OF RAIN

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 21 [Special].—Peoria's school authorities called off two intra-city football games today because of a slight rainfall. Manual and Central were scheduled to play this morning. They will battle it out tomorrow night. Spalding and Woodruff were scheduled this afternoon, but now will play Saturday night.

Dr. B. H. Trewyn, president of the school board, felt that the two games would mar the turf in the stadium. His decision was met with a chorus of boos and protests from the crowd already assembled for the morning game.

Purdue Squad in High Spirits as Drill Ends

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 21 [Special].—Purdue's football practice ended on a high note here this afternoon as "Miss Indiana," symbolized by a tackling dummy attired in a crimson jersey, took a terrific pounding from the coaching staff in a series of resounding tackles and then was burned in effigy as the entire squad hilariously sang "Hail Purdue." Preceding the ceremony, the squad held an intensive drill, on defense in preparation for meeting an Indiana eleven that on Saturday will seek its first victory in five years over the Boilermakers.

Coach Mal Elward announced he would stand pat on the line that has worked as a unit in the past three games.

Cook at Right Half.

The back field, however, again will be revamped, with Walter Cook, 160 pounder, taking over the right half back duties due to injuries to Mike Byelene and Paul Anderson.

HARRIS IS INJURED.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 21 [Special].—Archie Harris, colored end, joined Hal Hursh on the disabled list today as Coach Bo McMillin sent a revised Indiana football team thru its last hard drill in preparation for the Old Oaken Bucket battle at Purdue Saturday.

Harris received a leg injury and will not appear in the starting lineup, altho like Hal, he probably will be sent into the game for emergency duty.

Silverstein and Krauser Meet in Coliseum Tonight

Ralph [Ruffy] Silverstein, west side heavyweight wrestler, and Karol Krauser, Polish refugee, who has won nine earlier Chicago appearances, will meet in a one hour bout heading the mat show tonight in the Coliseum, 1513 South Wabash avenue.

The Swedish Angel will encounter Oki Shikina in a secondary feature set for 30 minutes. Jim McMillen will meet Ralph Garibaldi; Rudy Kay faces Adolph Goebels, and Dizzy Davis will oppose Rufus Jones.

WILSON DEFEATS MORGAN PARK, 6-0; WINS TITLE

Wilson won the Junior College conference championship yesterday by beating Morgan Park, 6 to 0, on the latter's gridiron.

In the second quarter John Curtis, right guard, caught a fumble in the air and was pulled down on the Morgan Park 20. Line plays put the ball on the 1 yard line, from where Paul Podmajersky plunged over.

MOST VALUABLE BIG NINE STARS NEAR SELECTION

Have Last Chance to Gain Recognition Tomorrow.

Favorite candidates for the most valuable player awards in Western conference football have their last opportunity tomorrow to prove to their teammates they deserve this recognition. With four conference games and with Northwestern meeting Notre Dame, brilliant performance by any one of several men might bring him the nomination from his own university.

While the Chicago Tribune silver football will be presented to the most valuable player to his team in the conference, the award is based on the award of nine miniature white gold footballs. Since each football squad elects its own most valuable player, that honor transcends selection on all other honor elevens. As many of these players have said, and as it was repeated last year by Iowa's Nile Kinnick, "This honor as the most valuable player comes from one's teammates. It is prized above all because of this reason."

All Players Eligible.

Each football squad will elect by secret ballot its most valuable player as soon as possible after the conclusion of the season. That player may be a lineman or a back, and he may be a sophomore, junior, or senior. Dick Good, Illinois' excellent forward passer, is a sophomore. He may be the Illini choice, or that award may go to Capt. Tom Riggs, a senior tackle; George Bernhardt, full back, or any other letter men.

Thruout the Big Nine, of course, such players as Tom Harmon, Bob Westfall, Capt. Forest Evashevski, and Bob Ingalls of Michigan; Don Scott, Capt. Jim Langhurst, and Claude White of Ohio State; John Petty and Capt. Dave Rankin of Purdue; George Paskvan, Wisconsin's full back; Capt. Mike Enich and Bill Green of Iowa; Indiana's Red Zimmer and Hal Hursh; Minnesota's Bruce Smith and George Franck; Ollie Hahnenstein, Paul Hiementz, and Corne Aarts of Northwestern are outstanding candidates for the honor team.

How Choice Is Made.

When the nine most valuable players have been named, the most valuable player in the Western conference will be elected by a secret vote of a committee of 21 which includes the nine conference coaches, nine outstanding officials, Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics of the Big Nine; Arch Ward, Tribune sports editor, and Wilfrid Smith. Each elector will cast two votes. His first place candidate will receive two points, his second one point. The player with the largest number of points will be presented with the life-size silver football. This is the 17th award in the series started in 1924.

GREG RICE WINS AND SETS RECORD IN C. Y. O. RACE

Greg Rice, former Notre Dame star now competing for the South Bend Athletic association, won the sixth annual C. Y. O. and Central A. A. U. Thanksgiving day cross country run yesterday in Jackson park. His time of 15:03 for the three mile and 188 yard course lowered by 24 seconds the mark established by Mel Trutt of Indiana two years ago. Max Lenover, Loyola university star and defending champion, was second, followed by Gilbert Cwik of the Lane Green and Gold club, and three University of Illinois runners, Gilbert Gladdings, Hank Walshon, and Donald Gladdings, who competed unattached.

Team honors went to Loyola university's state championship team, which scored 67 points to Lane Green and Gold's 88. Coach Alex Wilson's men completed their season with a perfect record in six appearances.

The other medal winners in the order in which they finished are: Joseph Weluki, Douglas park; William Barker, Loyola; Jack Murphy, Leon High; William Britt, Loyola; Lloyd Reeser, unattached; Dick Richardson, Wheaton college; Nick Smusyn, Lane Green and Gold; Henry Diettrich, unattached; Jack Habernorn, Calumet High; Arthur Wood, unattached; John Skola, Dekalb State Teachers; Ewing Taylor, unattached; Jim Smith, Morton High; Donald Bowers, Lane Green and Gold.

Northwestern, Notre Dame Alumni Will Meet Today

The Chicago clubs of Northwestern and Notre Dame will have a joint luncheon at noon today in the Bismarck hotel. Officials of the two groups, as well as representatives of the Northwestern coaching staff, will speak.

East High of Aurora Beats West High, 25-6

East High school of Aurora defeated West High in their 48th annual Thanksgiving day football game yesterday, 25 to 6. The score was 6 to 6 at the half, but East added a touchdown in the third quarter and two more in the fourth.

Fordham Tops Arkansas by Passing, 27-7

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Fordham Rams stole the aerial play away from air minded Arkansas to turn in a 27 to 7 victory in an intersectional battle before 12,500 fans today.

Twice in the first period, once in the second, and again in the third the Rams rambled over the Razorbacks' goal, and three of the scores came via passes. Arkansas, after a fine kickoff return by Bob Forte to the Fordham 35, scored in the third period. The rest of the time its offense was killed by its own fumbling attack and an alert Fordham defense.

The Razorbacks, drawn close to check ground plays, left themselves wide open for the bombing, which was accomplished with dispatch by Steve Filipowicz.

IT'S CHRISTMAN'S DAY; MISSOURI TRIUMPHS, 45-20

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 21 (AP).—Paul Christman had himself a day today.

Playing his final game for Missouri against the Tigers' most ancient and most cherished rival, Kansas, he passed for one touchdown, plunged for two and set up all except one of the others in the 45 to 20 victory, and, when he left the game in the final quarter with the clock still showing four minutes to go, the 17,000 homecoming spectators rose as one for a standing ovation.

It was the first time in the 49 years of rivalry that Missouri had won three in a row from Kansas; it was the Tigers' tenth straight victory on the home lot, and the scoring total of 65 points was the highest in the rivalry.

Ten times Christman cracked into the pliable Kansas line for a gain of fifty yards. He drew back his accurate right arm 13 times and eight times hit his receivers for one hundred sixty-seven yards.

Millikin Beats Bradley Tech on a Pass, 6 to 0

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 21 [Special].—Millikin university capped its football renaissance with a 6 to 0 victory over Bradley Tech today in an Illinois College conference game. It was the Big Blue's first triumph over Bradley since 1935 and its sixth success this year in eight games.

Virgil Wagner, sophomore half back from Belleville, Ill., got the touchdown march under way in the second quarter with a 30 yard punt return to Bradley's 28. Ed Dahm, another sophomore back from Belleville, made a first down on the 16 yard line. Three plays later Dahm's pass was deflected into Roger Merker's hands and the latter was downed on the 4 yard line. After two plunges Wagner went over on third down from the 2 foot line.

Tech Lacks Power.

Bradley failed to make a serious threat, its best advance reaching Millikin's 25 yard line late in the second period.

Millikin barely missed scoring early in the fourth quarter. After Dahm had raced forty-five yards to Bradley's 25 yard line with an intercepted pass and Millikin had charged on to the 4, a fourth down pass, Wagner to Dahm, failed by inches. Bradley made 12 first downs, Millikin 10.

DE KALB WINS, 32-12.

De Kalb, Ill., Nov. 21 [Special].—De Kalb Teachers ran over Macomb today, 32 to 12, to take fourth place in the Little 19 conference and to wind up the season with six victories and three defeats for the year. De Kalb scored in each of the first three periods. Macomb counted against De Kalb reserves in the final quarter.

BOWLING MATCH.

$200,000 AUCTION OF SHOW HORSES TO START TODAY

Famous show horses, 210 of them valued at $200,000, will be sold at auction today and tomorrow in the arena of the International Amphitheater, Halsted and 43d streets.

Owners in 11 states have consigned the pick of their stables to the sale, the largest in the United States, which has sessions scheduled at 1 p. m. and 7 p. m. today, and at 9:30 a. m., 1 p. m., and 7 p. m. tomorrow.

Harry McNair, in charge of the auction, said several of the fancy stepping gaited horses are expected by their owners to bring $5,000 to $10,000. Featured are Capt. Bill and Lady Jane, five gaited saddlers from the Pine Tree Farms at McHenry, Ill.

CENTRAL BEATEN BY WASHINGTON IN SOUTH BEND, 18-6

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 21 [Special].—South Bend Washington High school continued its domination over Central today by whipping the highly favored Central eleven, 18 to 6, before 10,000. Washington got off to a flying start, scoring twice in the first quarter, and made its final touchdown in the third period.

Eddie Talboom, left half back, sparked Washington's attack. He set up the first touchdown by racing 57 yards off tackle to Central's 3 yard line, whence Eugene Flowers scored.

This was Central's first conference defeat, but Central still clings to a chance for a tie for the eastern title of the Northern Indiana conference. Washington plays Mishawaka Monday night, and if Washington wins Central and Mishawaka will tie. A coin toss will determine which team will meet Lew Wallace of Gary on Nov. 30 for the conference championship.

WISCONSIN MAY START 6 SOPHS IN GOPHER GAME

Closing Battle Expected to Draw 45,000.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 21 [Special].—Starting positions remained in doubt today as the Wisconsin football squad went thru a review of defensive tactics in preparation for the Minnesota game Saturday.

The right end job is between Dave Schreiner and Al Lorenz and right half back between Jim McFadzean and Ted Damos. If Schreiner and McFadzean win the nod, the Badgers will face Minnesota at the opening kickoff with six sophomores in the lineup.

The players had their Thanksgiving feast last night and reported early today because of the holiday from classes. A steady rain left the practice field somewhat treacherous and no contact work was included in the workout.

The athletic ticket office announced that about 8,000 seats are left for the game which, with fair weather, is expected to draw a record crowd of close to 45,000.

ILLINI LEAVE TODAY

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 21 [Special].—After praising the Illini football players for their perseverance and courage thru all their vicissitudes this season, Coach Bob Zuppke sent the squad thru its last workout at home this morning.

Indications pointed to a starting lineup against Iowa composed of Arthur Marlaire, left end; Nate Johnson, left tackle; Harry Siebold, left guard; Kenneth Cheeley, center; Joseph Turek, right guard; Thomas Riggs, right tackle; Paul Milosevich, right end; Ralph Ehni, quarter back; John Worban, left half back; Robert Faikenstein, right half back, and George Bernhardt, full back.

The Illini will leave at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning, going first to Chicago. They will arrive in Moline at 1:46 p. m., where they will work out on the Moline High school field. The squad will remain in Davenport until Saturday forenoon.

CULVER ELEVEN DEFEATS KELLY OF CHICAGO, 20-0

Culver, Ind., Nov. 21 [Special].—The Culver Military academy ended its football season in the rain and mud here today by defeating Kelly High school of Chicago, 20 to 0.

Fred Moran, right half back from Chicago, scored the first and second cadet touchdowns from the 3 and 8 yard lines in the first and second quarters on lateral passes. Fee went thru tackle from the 12 yard line in the fourth quarter for the final tally.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Clyde Tolson, $7.80 straight, $3.70 place, $2.90 show; Early Morn, $4.30 place, $3.40 show; Jessie Gladys, $3.90 show.

CLYDE TOLSON, away fast, was rated along perfectly to stretch where he drew away, winning nicely in hand. EARLY MORN went up with a rush on inside and finished gamely. JESSIE GLADYS was hustled along from the start and made a game effort. RED WRACK ran a sparkling race. He was a stout contender all the way. NO SIR broke very slow and was lengths out of it in early part. He closed a big gap in run thru stretch. LIBERTY FRANC stopped badly.

FIFTH RACE—Purse $7,500 added. Handicap. Two year olds. Mile and 70 yards. Start good. Won driving, place same. Went to post at 3:49½. Off at 3:50½. Winner b. c., 2, by Challenger II.-Minnant, by Pennant. Owner, Mrs. E. G. Lewis. Trainer, H. G. Bedwell. Net value to winner, $6,550; second, $1,500; third, $750; fourth, $375. Time, 1:45 2-5.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Magnificent, $3.80 straight, $2.90 place, $2.40 show; Cis Marion, $4.80 place, $3.20 show; Hop Skip, $4.60 show.

MAGNIFICENT, away alertly, was kept on inside, raced COMMIXION and HOP SKIP into defeat and gamely stalled off the determined bid of CIS MARION. The latter moved up fast on the outside, closed gamely, but just failed to get up. HOP SKIP was rushed up, displayed keen speed for seven furlongs, then tired. HASTY NOTION ran a remarkable race. He was last away and lengths out of it. The boy steered him to the outside. He closed a big gap. CAVALIER closed some ground. BIG LEAGUE had early speed. HARDY BUD never a factor. COMMIXION was being eased up at end.

SIXTH RACE—Purse $1,200. Claiming price $3,000. Three year olds and up. Mile and a sixteenth. Start good. Won driving, place same. Went to post at 4:24½. Off at once. Two dollar mutuels paid: Abmeres, $10.30 straight, $6.90 place, $4.60 show; Count Morse, $9.70 place, $6.20 show; Lyner, $6.40 show.

ABMERES broke slowly, made up ground rapidly, came around the field in the stretch, and won going away. COUNT MORSE moved into contention early and made a game effort. LYNER finished with a good burst of speed. MAECHANCE was rushed into a long lead but stopped badly in the final furlong. ABBASSIDE had no mishap. ALUMINIO unseated the rider at the start.

SEVENTH RACE—Purse $1,200. Claiming prices $1,500 to $1,750. Three year olds and up. Mile and a half. Start good. Won driving, place same. Went to post at 4:54½. Off at 4:55½. NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

WAR BLOCKADES BOOM POTTERY MAKING IN U. S.

Domestic Output Is 95% of Sales.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

American pottery and china manufacturers are stepping up production to fill orders that have accumulated since the European war cut off most of the foreign supply and are refusing to agree to make deliveries before early in 1941, dealers reported yesterday.

Percy Wilson tells gains in pottery sales.

The pottery industry is one of many in the United States which have found their outlook drastically altered by the war. Before the conflict began, imports accounted for about one-third of the pottery business in America, according to officials of the Merchandise Mart and dealers with headquarters there. Now, these sources said, the domestic product constitutes 95 per cent of the business and foreign pottery only 5 per cent.

England Biggest Source.

Countries from which pottery still is being received include England, China, and Japan, but only from England is the volume of any consequence, the dealers reported. They said the Shanghai area is supplying the United States with some commercial pottery but that no such products are coming from Peking, where the finest of modern Chinese pottery is made.

For a time after the fall of Czecho-Slovakia, and after Belgian, Swedish, and Dutch pottery shipments were cut off by the British blockade against Germany, Italy rose rapidly as a pottery source and provided the United States with 40 per cent of its pottery imports. But, when Italy entered the war, the blockade shut off that supply.

English manufacturers still are taking American orders for pottery, but prices have risen about 15 per cent because of increased shipping and insurance costs, Chicago dealers said. They estimated that prices on pottery from China have risen 10 per cent.

American Costs Cut.

When American producers took over the job of filling the gap in supplies, their prices at first were higher than those on comparable imported items of the type that had not been made on a large scale in this country. Labor costs, designing problems, and other factors influenced prices. Later, costs were reduced, so that on most American pottery, prices now average about the same as did the imported products in normal times. Some domestic pottery costs less than the imports formerly did, and some kinds still cost more, according to dealers.

One development emphasized by sales trends and buyer sentiment at pottery shows has been the willingness with which consumers have switched to domestic products. Formerly many preferred the foreign pottery. The public definitely prefers the domestic product now, retailers and wholesalers alike report.

The pottery industry, in the midst of its Christmas upsurge, is expecting some difficulty in the supply situation when the time comes to replace the stocks depleted by the holiday buying. The manufacturers are said to face a problem in finding additional skilled pottery workers.

The government has added to the problem, pottery men say, by offering high wages to men who can do certain kinds of defense production work that involves a potter's skill.

"Labor is fast becoming a major problem of the pottery manufacturer," Percy Wilson managing director of the Merchandise Mart, said yesterday," especially in factories in industrial centers where many government orders have been placed.

Tells of High Wage Bids.

"Skilled workmen earning 80 cents to $1 an hour are leaving their jobs to accept offers of $1.50 an hour in factories with enough government orders to keep them busy for at least three years. As an extra inducement, many of these factories are offering the potter the privilege of working as many hours overtime as they desire."

Despite this difficulty, Wilson reported that the china, glass and pottery industries have done 29.8 per cent more business in the 10 months ended Oct. 31 than in the corresponding period of last year.

He said sales for the industry had dropped off in October because companies had called in their road salesmen 30 to 60 days earlier than ever before due to an inability to accept further orders until Jan. 1. Sales totals slumped 31.5 per cent from September reports, and 20.3 per cent compared with October, 1939.

PRICES OF GRAIN CHANGE LITTLE IN WINNIPEG TRADE

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 21 (AP).—Trading was almost at a standstill today in the grain exchange, and at the close wheat prices were unchanged to ⅛ lower, with December futures at 71¾, May 76, and July 77¾.

No export sales of wheat or flour were reported.

There was some demand for cash wheat, but it was not as urgent as earlier in the week and only odd cars changed hands.

HOWARD GATES IS NAMED HEAD OF MAJESTIC RADIO

Howard Gates, a pioneer in the radio industry, has been named president and director of the Majestic Radio and Television corporation, Elmer C. Upton, secretary and treasurer, announced yesterday. Gates will take over his new duties on Dec. 1.

Reorganization proceedings for the company were closed Aug. 9 with the dismissal of the trustee.

GENERAL ELECTRIC ADDING $8,000,000 TO WORKERS' PAY IN 1940

New York, Nov. 21 [Special].—The General Electric company will add about $8,000,000 to the regular 1940 earnings of about 66,000 of its employés who are eligible to participate under the general profit sharing and cost of living adjustment plans, President Charles E. Wilson announced today. This compares with $5,019,000 so disbursed by the company in 1939.

Charles E. Wilson.

Based upon estimates of 1940 net income, about $4,500,000 will be available for distribution as general profit sharing, while the additional $3,500,000 represents cost of living adjustment in employé earnings, compared with $2,566,000 and $2,453,000 respectively for 1939.

The company now has 82,000 employés, or 15,000 more than a year ago, excluding employment by affiliated companies.

STATE BUILDING PERMITS GAIN 11% IN OCTOBER

Month's Total 37% Above Year Ago.

Permits for new building projects issued in Illinois during October showed an increase of 5.8 per cent over September permits, while the total valuation of the prospective construction gained 11.2 per cent, the state department of labor reported yesterday.

The survey included 163 cities which issued a total of 4,408 building permits, calling for an estimated outlay of $12,306,126. In September 3,825 permits were recorded in these cities, with a total valuation being $11,067,601.

Total 37 Per Cent Above Last Year.

Compared with the same month a year ago, October permit valuations were up 37 per cent, while the month's increase over the average for the first nine months of this year was 20.7 per cent. In the first 10 months of 1940, permit valuations totaled $104,089,705, against $78,530,969 for the corresponding period of last year.

Of the total permit valuations for October, 57 per cent was for new residential buildings, 32 per cent for new nonresidential buildings, and the remaining 11 per cent for additions, installations, and repairs. October permit valuations for new residential buildings jumped 30.3 per cent over September, with part of the increase being attributed to the defense housing project in Rock Island. These plans call for the construction of 53 buildings at a cost of $745,000 for the housing of 311 families.

Chicago Permits High.

In Chicago 953 building project permits were granted for an outlay of approximately $5,067,251. This represented gains of 4.2 per cent over September and 17.5 per cent over October, 1939. Other comparisons showed October increases of 7.7 per cent in permit valuations for residential buildings and 6 per cent for nonresidential structures over September, with valuations for additions showing a decline of 12.1 per cent.

Chicago permits included two for factory buildings to cost $102,000 and $320,000, one warehouse at $100,000, one office building at $185,000, and three school buildings to cost $100,000, $150,000, and $600,000.

Suburban Building Spurts.

Sixty-six Chicago suburban cities reported that permit valuations in October amounted to $3,677,658, an increase of 22.7 per cent over September's total. This also represented an increase of 37.9 per cent over October of last year.

The report from 96 downstate cities listed gains in October permit valuations of 11.1 per cent over September, and 77.8 per cent compared with the same month a year ago.

United Air Lines Gives Up New Plane to Army

The United Air Lines have diverted to the army air corps one of the ten 21 passenger Douglas DC-3 transports scheduled for delivery by the Douglas Aircraft company to United this month, W. A. Patterson, president, announced yesterday. The air line will receive a similar plane in June, the tenth of the order.

Banks and Markets to Reopen Today

All the markets and banks, which closed yesterday for the Thanksgiving holiday, will be open today.

Bank Clearings for Last Week Set 1940 Peak

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—Bank clearings for 23 leading cities in the United States in the week ended yesterday totaled $6,748,673,000, a new high for 1940, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

This represented a gain of $1,362,435,000 over the preceding week, which was shortened by the Armistice day holiday, contrasted with a week to week gain of only $413,065,000 between the two similar weeks of last year.

The latest week's total showed a rise of 19.8 per cent over the $5,633,653,000 for the like 1939 week.

Turnover of checks at New York city alone at $3,746,535,000 was the largest since the first week of April, and 23.5 per cent above the $3,034,475,000 a year ago.

For the other cities the total was $3,002,138,000, the highest level since January, 1931. The outside cities aggregate represented a gain of 15.5 per cent above the $2,599,178,000 for the like week of 1939. All of the 23 cities reported gains.

At Chicago check clearings totaled $387,200,000, a rise of 13.2 per cent over the $341,900,000 a year ago.

BEECH-NUT CO. VOTES 25 CENTS EXTRA DIVIDEND

Directors of the Beech-Nut Packing company, manufacturer of food products and chewing gum, yesterday announced an extra dividend of 25 cents on common stock in addition to the regular quarterly payment, of $1. Both are payable on Jan. 2 to stockholders of record as of Dec. 10. The company paid an extra of 50 cents Oct. 1, and on Nov. 5 voted a special dividend of $1 payable Dec. 14.

The American Colortype company voted the usual annual dividend of $5 a share on the company's 5 per cent preferred stock, payable Dec. 20 to stockholders of record of Dec. 12.

Directors of Maryland Fund, Inc., announced the regular quarterly dividend of 10 cents a share on common stock, payable Dec. 15 to shareholders of record Nov. 30.

La Salle Industrial Finance corporation, with offices in Chicago, announced regular quarterly dividends of 17½ cents a share of class A stock and 3¾ cents a share on common stock. Both payments are to be made Dec. 31 to shareholders of record Dec. 16.

FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS QUIET; PRICES UNEVEN

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

With security and commodity markets generally closed in the United States for the Thanksgiving holiday, trading in foreign centers was mostly slow and price changes narrow:

LONDON.—South African golds made some improvement early, but did not hold all gains. Rails were depressed on belief trade unions would soon demand higher wages. Gilt-edge issues came back after early softness. Most other sections of the list were neglected.

TORONTO, Ont.—Uncertainties in the war situation combined with the United States holiday to hold transactions to about 150,000 shares. There was a minor pickup in gold stocks toward the close. Base metals were mixed.

TWO RAILS BUY 2,750 CARS AND 7 LOCOMOTIVES

Two railroads yesterday announced placing orders for 2,750 freight cars and seven locomotives with a total cost of $9,000,00.

At Birmingham the Louisville and Nashville placed a $4,000,000 car order with the Bessemer, Ala., plant of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company.

The order, which brings the backlog for the plant to a new record, is for 1,600 50-ton hopper cars, 100 end-door automobile cars and 50 70-ton gondola cars.

At Pittsburgh the Bessemer and Lake Erie announced contracts for approximately $5,000,000. Orders for 650 hopper type cars went to Pullman-Standard Car company, 300 box cars to the Greenville Steel Car company, 50 flat cars to Magor Car corporation, five Texas type large locomotives to the Baldwin Locomotive works, and two eight-wheeled switching locomotives to the American Locomotive company.

APPROVAL NEEDED.

Did the directors of American Airlines issue the new preferred stock on their own initiative or did they have to consult the stockholders?—F. C.

Answer: In order to issue the 50,000 shares of new preferred stock recently offered to the public, the directors of American Airlines, Inc., were required by the company's charter and by-laws to obtain the approval of the common stockholders permitting the creation of the new class of stock. At a special meeting called Oct. 24 the stockholders ratified the directors' proposal and authorized the creation of 100,000 shares of $4.25 cumulative convertible preferred stock of no par value and the issuance of 50,000 shares of the total authorized.

OVER THE BORDER.

Can the Securities and Exchange commission or state securities authorities take any action against fake securities salesmen who solicit business in this country by mail or telephone from Mexico or Canada?—B. W.

Answer: The jurisdiction of the Securities and Exchange commission and of the state blue sky departments is limited to the boundaries of the United States or of the individual states. However, reports on across-the-border operators are often filed by the SEC with the Canadian or Mexican authorities who can then investigate to determine if the securities salesmen are violating their laws.

HANDLEY PAGE.

I would like to know the business of Handley Page, its headquarters and the location of the market for its stock.—P. F.

Answer: Handley Page, Ltd., is a leading English manufacturer of airplanes, and has stock interests in British air transport companies. The company's offices and factories are in Cricklewood, London. The stock is traded on the London Stock exchange.

COLLATERAL TRUST.

What is the nature of a collateral trust bond?—F. S.

Answer: Collateral trust bonds are secured entirely or partly by the pledge of securities as collateral with the trustee of the issue under a collateral trust indenture, which authorizes the trustee to sell the pledged securities if there is a default on the payment of interest or principal.

Would you be interested in starting a business for yourself without 1 cent of investment on your part?

Well, that is exactly what we have done for many men in this territory.

These men are previous storekeepers, doctors, lawyers, shoeworkers, mechanics, etc., and are now earning and receiving in percentage as much as $50 in a single day.

We are an old line nationally known manufacturer of electrical units that defy competition and for which there is a constantly increasing demand.

Now, here are the arrangements: You must be between 24 and 54, preferably married, honest, reliable, possess a neat appearance and possess at least a grammar school education.

At this time we will only interview men living on the South Side and southern Cook county.

Every man answering this advertisement will be given a confidential interview and if selected will be trained at our expense in our methods, which are successful.

There are no strings attached to the offer, as we even can pay rent, light, heat, telephone girl hire, consign our merchandise and finance your account.

Apply Friday at 11 a. m. sharp. Ask for Mr. Leonard, 2d floor, Standard National Bank Building, 7919 S. Ashland-av.

MEN
THIS IS YOUR BUSINESS.
We make a straight-from-the-shoulder statement of a business possibility that will cost you money to ignore.
